Public Forum

New Party Platform

The purpose of this statement is to clarify the position of the Peoples party of Aurelius Township. As was stated in our first public petition, it is to answer a need felt for a choice in electing township officers—thereby stimulating interest in attending caucuses in voting at election and in generally preserving the two-party system which is the very life of democracy. Unidentified spokesmen have intimated that our purpose in forming a party is to build a recreation center, using township funds. This could hardly be true. Such a project could not be accomplished without the consent of the voters themselves. We do believe that some of the surplus money the township has and has had for several years could well be spent to repair our townhall, which is in a state that does credit to none of us. We know of no quarrel over expenditures of money for road repair. We approve the use of surplus money for road repair where feasible.

Four Ingham Farm Families Due for FHA Recognition

March 17, 1949

THE INGHAM COUNTY NEWS Part 2

Within the next two weeks four Ingham farm families will be picked to receive special honors at a progress day celebration to be held in Mason Thursday, April 7. The meeting will be held in the Knights of Pythias hall, above the Consumers Power company office.

The celebration is being staged, Harold Gates explaining, to encourage better farming and better living among FHA cooperating families. Gates is county FHA supervisor.

At the meeting four families will be honored for exceptional progress in family, farm and community living. The four families will be chosen during the next two weeks by the USDA county council from among the 351 families who have been served by the Farmers Home Administration or its predecessor agency, the Farm Security Administration which was established in 1935.

Families will be chosen on the basis of their progress in family living — including improvements related to financial management, housing, health, and education of the children; farm improvement including soil conservation through such means as careful cultivation, fertilizing, and drainage; crop improvement through better balance of crops, variety selection, and proper timing; and livestock improvement through better breeding, feeding, testing and housing, Gates explained.

In each case, Gates said, families will also be judged on the basis of their character, community leadership, and farm and home accomplishments, as well as the appearance of their farms. Such factors as neighborliness, participation in the work of farm organizations, churches and schools, will be considered in addition to progress in improving family living and farming operations.

Only families who have received farm and home plan loans to buy or operate farms will be eligible. The families may or may not have already repaid their loans. Preferred rating will be given those who have moved steadily ahead in all phases of farm, family, and community living rather than excelled in only one or two aspects, perhaps at the expense of others, Gates said.

The emphasis throughout, the county supervisor explained, will be on the difference in present status as compared to status when the first contact with the agency was made. No comparison of the current situations of various families will be made. The recognition is a for-growth and advancement of individual families.

Nominations for the progress awards will be made by the FHA county committee with the help of the county supervisor. The selection committee of the council will then consider the nominees and pool their judgments to determine winners. Council members will study FHA records of various families which will be made available to them for reference. The winning families, Gates concluded, will in turn be honored by the county at a statewide meeting later at East Lansing, where some 250 Michigan FHA farm families selected in the same manner will be honored. At that time, all will be awarded certificates of progress in recognition of their achievements.

The four families chosen, Gates added, will be guests of honor on April 7. All of the 351 families on the county files of the Farmers Home Administration will be invited to attend.

"The winning families," Gates concluded, "will in turn be honored by the county at a statewide meeting later at East Lansing, where some 250 Michigan FHA farm families selected in the same manner will be honored. At that time, all will be awarded certificates of progress in recognition of their achievements."

Supervisor Warns Of Drastic Tilt In Fuel Gas Price

Supervisor Walter Munyon of East Lansing warned his colleagues on the county board that if the public service commission grants the requests of the Consumers Power company some gas service charges may be increased as much as 88 per cent.

The Lansing supervisor declared the Consumers Power company earned $2.45 a share last year and paid investors $2.00 per share. The earnings and dividends were based on present rates, Munyon asserted. He also stated that the Consumers Power company is not paying any more for natural gas at Michigan wells than was paid 20 years ago.

Munyon urged supervisors to write letters to legislators demanding that the proposed price schedules of Consumers be scaled down.

Funeral Services Held Wednesday For Former Register of Deeds

At the Jowett funeral home Wednesday afternoon services were held for Frank A. Lester, 72. He died at his home, 411 West Maple in Mason Sunday afternoon. He had been sick several weeks.

Fifty years ago Mr. Lester was Ingham register of deeds. He had just graduated from Dansville high school and was attending his first Republican county convention when he was put in nomination for the office. All nominations were by convention in those days. The young man, then just 21, was elected and two years later was re-elected. From 1916 to 1918 he served as city assessor of Mason. He conducted a general insurance business at his home for the past 20 years.

For many years Mr. Lester was active in the Sons of Civil War Veterans association and also served as secretary of his father's regimental association. For one period Mr. Lester served in the Michigan national guard.

Mr. Lester was an active Mason, holding life memberships in Mason lodge No. 70, F. & A. M., Ingham chapter No. 51, R. A. M., and Leslie council No. 50, R. & S. He was a past high priest of Ingham chapter and a past trustee of the Ingham chapter of the Grand Chapter of Michigan.

Born in Ingham township June 1, 1876, Mr. Lester was the son of John Francis and Charlotte Lester. After attending rural school he entered high school in Dansville, being graduated with the class of 1897. On November 23, 1898, he married Lucille May, who survives him.

Immediately after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Lester came to Mason to make their home. They have resided here since. Last year in November they marked their 50th wedding anniversary.

They were guests at a reception given them by the Masonic organizations in the lodge rooms. Rev. L. G. Carsaway of the Mason Baptist church officiated at the funeral services. Burial was in Maple Grove. Pallbearers were Alvin B. Ellis of Holt and Walter Zimmer, William S. Seelye, Victor L. Palmer, Nathan Davis and Ford Aseltine.

Supervisors Table County Fair Bills

E. D. Whipple & Son, Mickelson-Baker Lumber Co. and the Consumers Power Co. will have to wait at least another month for their pay for material and services furnished the county fair. The board tabled the three bills until the April meeting. The bills covered labor and services in 1947 and 1948.

The claims presented were $1,485.33 for Mickelson-Baker, $3,170.99 for E. D. Whipple & Son and $318.00 for Consumers Power.

Supervisor Rina Dell of the fair committee said he had taken the matter up with Chairman Hubert Bullen of the ways and means committee, who had authorized presentation. Bullen explained that he had meant the bills should be presented at the April meeting instead of the March meeting. No money will be available to cover the bills until April, Bullen declared.

Bishops' Fund Aids War Victims

St. James Parish of Mason has again taken up the Bishops' Fund campaign for the victims of war. The drive is undertaken by the bishops of the Catholic church in the United States for funds to continue the world-wide relief work of Catholic overseas agencies.

The campaign in Ingham parishes will open Sunday, March 20, and will be concluded on Laetare Sunday, March 27. Fr. Charles Keating of the St. James Mission explained. He said the drive will get started March 20 but the actual collection will be the following Sunday, March 27.

Funds will be used for the shipment of foodstuffs, clothing and medical supplies to the victims of war, especially to the children, the aged and the sick. Father Keating said, "and the distribution is made without regard to race, creed or color. Some of the money is used to aid the resettlement of displaced persons in this country and in South America."

The Bishops' Fund agencies operate with an administration cost of less than two per cent because they work hand in hand with the indigenous Catholic charitable agencies in the war-stricken countries. With the help supplied from American many of the agencies which were almost out of existence during the war have made a comeback and now help administer relief from America efficiently and effectively under the supervision of Americans.

This year the national campaign goal is $5,000,000. That's the minimum.

The fund has been used in 92 countries. Since August of 1942 relief materials valued at more than $131,610,000 have been supplied to war sufferers through the fund. Most of the foodstuffs, clothing and medical supplies sent abroad were collected in the goods-driving drives conducted in the Catholic parishes from 1944 to 1947. The Thanksgiving Fund collection during the 1947 Thanksgiving week yielded 60,000,000 pounds of food.

Democrat Candidates Guests of Jack Morea

Four of the Democratic candidates for state offices at the spring election, with about 40 leading members of the party, from Ingham and Jackson counties, were the guests of Jack Morea Sunday afternoon at a chicken dinner served in his restaurant in Leslie. It was hoped that Governor Glenn Williams would be present, but another engagement prevented his appearance but he did send a letter expressing his regrets for not being able to attend.

The candidates who were present and spoke to the group were Mrs. Rosa Falk of Grand Rapids, a candidate for regent of the University of Michigan, who stated that she objected to the sessions of the regents from which the press and the public were excluded and that they should be as open as are meetings of a local school board or a city council; Harvey C. Whetzel, candidate for membership on the state board of agriculture; James M. Bolan, an Adrian, candidate for the state board of education; and E. Burr Sherwood of Stambaugh, candidate for superintendent of public instruction, who delivered the principal address.

He emphasized the need of more funds for the schools of the state and criticized the legislature for trying to deprive portions of the state reversion funds from the schools which the people have declared twice by popular vote that the schools should have.

The gathering was presided over by Charles Hayes of East Lansing, chairman of the Ingham county Democratic committee. He stated that the party was not dictated to by labor leaders as the Republicans claim, but was offering cooperation which was acceptable. The invocation was offered by Rev. Edward J. Cross of Leslie.

Book Talk

Ingham County Library

Hours open to the public at Hill Memorial Library, Mason: Every day except Sundays and holidays, 2-6 p. m.; Monday, Wednesday, Saturday, 7-9 p. m.; during school year, 11:45-12:45; story hour 1:30-2:00 p. m.

THERE IS NO ARMOUR is the story of what happened over the years to the dreams and ambitions of a young Manchester boy who was determined to become a famous artist, of the women he loved, and of his effect on the lives of those associated with him. It is as well the story of an era. Returning to the mood of MY SON, MY SON, Howard Spring has written a fine novel full of good characterization and plot.

THEODOSIA, DAUGHTER OF

AARON BURR by Anne Colver is no longer a new book, but it will add new interest to the reader who enjoys his history mixed with romance. Essentially the story of Theodosia and her relationship with her famous and talented father, it is as well the story of his rise and downfall and the change in personality due probably as much to pride as to continued irritation by his once close associate, Alexander Hamilton.

Weaver in Texas Recruiting Labor

Ben Weaver, field man in northern Ohio and Michigan for the H. W. Madison company, is in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas this week recruiting labor for 1949 cucumber, cabbage and other garden crops. His headquarters in Texas are at San Antonio with another stand at McAllen.

Between 700 and 800 field laborers are being recruited to handle the Madison acreage this year, Weaver reported.

The Mason man left Saturday night for McAllen and is not expected to return home until the last of the month.

A growing problem in American cities is traffic, experts say, since 41 million motor vehicles were registered in 1948. Los Angeles has the heaviest concentration.

This story of early days with a true knowledge. If you are doing any buying of books for children you will be interested in knowing that the Caldecott Award, for the best illustrated book of the year, went to Berta Hader for BIG SNOW, and the Newbery Award, for the best story of the year, went to Marguerite Henry for KING OF THE WIND.

Have you used your WORLD ALMANAC recently? We always have a copy, but it's one of the reference books we think few families should be without. For $1.00 you can have considerable knowledge at your finger-tips. Social Security laws, the government of Russia, United Nations charter, chronology of the year, sporting champions, etc.

"Larceny," co-starring John Payne, Joan Caulfield, Dan Duryea and Shelley Winters will be shown at the Fox on Saturday. The suspense story concerns an eastern gang that goes to a wealthy town just outside Los Angeles to set up a fictitious war memorial expected to net the crooks $100,000.

Dan Duryea portrays the gang leader, while Shelley Winters appears as his girl friend, John Payne, as a decoy, goes to the town and becomes acquainted with the city manager's daughter, portrayed by Joan Caulfield. He then proceeds to set the scene for the swindle.

Before the fraud is completed, Payne falls in love with the girl and tries to upset the plan for her sake. Duryea, however, threatens to kill Payne if he refuses to go through with the deal according to plan.

Set to Music Warner Bros.' richly-tinted technicolor film, "One Sunday Afternoon," with Dennis Morgan, Dorothy Malone, Don DeFore and Janis Paige, is scheduled to be shown at the Fox on Sunday and Monday. Set against the bicycle-built-for-two era, the film is lavishly sprinkled with charm and appeal, with the accent on songs and laughs.

The plot is simple. Part of it is told in flash-back form. Dennis Morgan plays Janis, but loses her to the aggressive Don. Dorothy however is at hand and Dennis marries her, mostly out of spite. Later when Don has prospered overnight, he invites Dennis to join his firm.

However there is a building scandal and Dennis takes the rap. When he gets out of prison he is very bitter and plans to take his revenge on Don. This occasion arrives suddenly when Don comes over to his improvised dental office at home for a tooth operation. When Dennis sees what a harassed husband he is to the now temperamental Janis, he forgets the past. He now turns to Dorothy, knowing that they are really the happy ones.

Comedy, Then Western Eddie Albert heads the comedy cast of "The Dude Goes West," coming to the Fox on Tuesday and Wednesday. Gale Storm and James Gleason are featured. Gene Autry and Champion plus Gloria Henry and Jack Holt will be seen at the Fox Thursday and Friday in "The Strawberry Roan." The screenplay tells of the capture of a magnificent wild stallion by the cowboys of the Bar-B ranch, owned by Walt Bailey (Jack Holt). When his son Joe (Dick Jones) tries to "break" the horse, he is thrown and thought to be crippled for life. Bailey orders the stallion shot, but Autry, ranch foreman, allows the animal to escape. The furious Bailey declares them both outlaws and posts a reward for their seizure.

No. 6 This Week's Public Issue

(Editor's Note: Here are the pertinent facts on a public issue as prepared by the University of Michigan Department of Political Science. This material is designed to present both sides of the question to help in your thinking on current issues. Your club or discussion group may also find this column useful.)

Background "Fair Employment Practices" means employment discrimination because of race, color, creed or national origin. The phrase came into use in World War II when the national emergency required the most efficient use of all available resources. The commission was established to carry out the terms of an executive order issued by President Roosevelt forbidding such discriminatory practices in defense industries or government employment. At the end of the war, however, the Federal Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPCC) ceased operations and this prohibition was left to the states to handle as they saw fit. Since 1945 New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey have adopted FEPA acts.

In this state, the platforms of both major parties have had "Fair Employment Practices" planks. The Griffiths-Doyle bill represents an effort by Democratic legislators to implement the promise of their party. Republican legislators are reported to be preparing a bill on this subject which will provide for a popular referendum. Under the Griffiths-Doyle bill it would be unlawful: (1) for an employer to refuse to hire a person because of race, color, creed, or national origin, or to discriminate on rates of pay or working conditions on such grounds; (2) for a labor organization to exclude or expel a person for such reasons; (3) for an employer or employment agency to print advertisements or use application forms discriminating on these grounds; and (4) to discriminate against a person objecting to discriminatory practices. A five-member commission would be established which would have the right to compel witnesses to testify about alleged violations of the act.

Where violations are discovered the commission would first attempt to remedy the situation by conciliation. If that fails, public hearings would be held and the commission could issue orders to cease and desist from unlawful employment practices. These orders could be appealed in the courts. Willful violations of the law could be punished by a fine of $500 or a year in prison.

Some of the chief points made in the discussion of this issue have been:

Yes 1. Political democracy is meaningless if we do not also have economic democracy. Discrimination on grounds of race, color, religion or national origin is a relic of the dark ages. If we are to pose as champions of democracy and the common man we must not leave ourselves open to the Communist charge that we do not have genuine democracy in our country. 2. An act substantially the same as the one proposed for Michigan has been in operation in New York for several years. On the whole it has worked very well and the power to fine or imprison has not been used. 3. While it is true that the problem is basically one of education, placing a law on the books is the quickest way to educate people. It also protects the progressive employer and trade union against chiseling by unscrupulous competitors.

No 1. Employment is not a civil right. If any kind of rights are involved, it is not reasonable to maintain that a man has a right to choose his working associates as well as his social companions? The proposed act invades a new field when it undertakes to dictate who may be hired by a private employer or who is to be allowed to join a labor union. 2. If racial discrimination is to be eliminated, it will come about only by the slow process of education. It is useless to pass laws against tendencies ingrained in human nature, as we saw in the prohibition amendment failure. 3. This is an example of a bill forced on the attention of the legislature by representatives of organized minorities. If it is passed it could be used by agitators to stir up racial strife. Legislation should represent the genuine wishes of the majority of our citizens and not come from relatively small pressure groups.

Fulton School Mrs. Helen Franklin The Fulton P. T. A. held its annual meeting Friday evening, starting off with a potluck supper. The meeting was called to order by the president. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, after which the nominating committee reported for the new officers, which were elected during the meeting. New officers for the coming year are: Burt McNelly, president; first vice president, Mrs. Betty Hart; second vice president, Mrs. Freda Watson; and secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Roy Carlson. After the meeting a gift from the P. T. A. was presented by Walter Franklin to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Call and family as a farewell gift. Robert Hartwell has been ill for the past few days. Donald Norton was a dinner guest at the Walter Franklin home Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and family were Sunday evening callers at the Ambler home.

The Equitable is a MUTUAL institution... And this means that Equitable is its policyholders... You can't buy stock in Equitable; there are no Equitable stockholders, no Equitable bondholders... Millions of people who want family security have joined together mutually in Equitable in the sound belief that the type of solid security they need is to be found only in cooperation with others... The desire for security through cooperation has thus created mutual insurance—dependable financial protection through voluntary association. This is mutuality.

Making the Most of Our Talents

In Biblical times a talent was a measure of money. One of the most widely known parables is that of the servants who were given respectively five, two and one talents.

Today talent no longer means a coin. Too many of us confuse talent with genius. There are only a few geniuses in the world. All of us have talents. Few of us make the most of them.

Talent means ability to do a certain thing. A man with a talent for business or the law or medicine has aptitude for those things. A genius has supreme native endowment as distinguished from aptitude. The man with genius is often inspired. The rest of us have to work out our destiny by sweat.

We all have talents but the tragedy is that few of us do much with them. We don't live up to them. We don't make the most of what we have. We live ineffectively because day by day, week by week, year by year, we use our talents less than we should. That's why we don't measure up to the problems in our daily lives. That's why we don't measure up to the issues of the community, the state, the nation, the world. That was the way of the slothful servant. That was why in the parable the talent was taken from the man who had hidden his one talent away and given to the man who had put his five talents to work.

The successful men and women are those who come close to using all their talents. They are the ones who live each day to the full whether their talents are used in farming, industry, retailing, medicine or business, and whether they are listed as executives or wage earners.

Some people are criticized for singing when they lack talent. But there are more people who should be criticized for not using the singing talent they have. All of us criticize politicians for trying to govern us when they lack talent as leaders. We are the ones who should be censured for not using our own talents to govern ourselves. There would be no wrong leaders if there were not wrong followers—wrong in the sense that they are not using their talents to search out the truth or follow an honest leader.

If all of us, or some of us, or even a few of us right here in this community would begin to make the most of our talents how quickly the problems facing all of us would be solved. Our problems remain unsolved not because we don't have talent to solve them, but because we don't use the talent we have.

Ingham's New Fire Truck

Members of the Ingham township board used sound judgment in buying a fire truck and in training a crew of firemen. The cost of the fire truck can be saved many times over by having the equipment quickly available to save property. It takes just a little fire these days to run the damage up to $10,000.

The Mason firemen and the firemen from Stockbridge and Williamston have responded quickly and willingly to every call from Dansville and Ingham township. But willingness is not enough and even being quick is not enough when the firemen have to drive from 8 to 16 miles to reach the scene of a blaze. When a fire starts even the seconds count.

Fire has caused heavy losses in Ingham township and the village of Dansville the past few years. Residents of the township are justified in demanding better protection. Members of the town board used good judgment in providing it.

The Price of Cigaretts

Don't accuse this legislature of being a do-nothing legislature. Last week and this members of the house have been trying to put a floor under the price of cigarette. The bill they have been studying makes it a crime for a wholesaler to sell cigarette without a two per cent markup and for a retailer to sell for a markup of less than six per cent.

Why, oh, why should it make any difference to a legislator what a merchant charges for cigarette or what he pays for them? If a merchant wants to give cigarette away or sell them at two cents a package why is it any concern of the legislators, or of the people they are supposed to represent?

If the price of cigarette is the most important issue before the legislature, then adjournment is in order.

Monday's School Election

Next Monday between noon and eight o'clock at night Mason people will decide whether or not $250,000 is to be invested in a new West Side elementary school.

The Mason school is overcrowded and census statistics indicate that there will be no shrinkage in coming years. The building program placed before Mason people Monday is the one worked out by the board of education. Members of the board believe the program is feasible and adequate and is the one needed by the school district.

By speaking before civic groups, by an educational campaign conducted through the press and by pamphlets which have been or will be distributed the school board has presented facts and figures and has offered its solution.

The time for study is drawing to a close. There is little time left for argument or debate. The time of decision is Monday afternoon and evening. Every qualified elector in the school district has the responsibility and duty of casting his ballot.

Amusements Are Amusements

Dr. Lee M. Thurston, superintendent of public instruction, has called on Michigan congressmen to exempt school amusements from the federal excise tax. He gives as his reason that school events are non-profit since most of the gate receipts go back into the purchase of athletic equipment.

School amusement and entertainment enterprises is business and big business. Dr. Thurston's own figures show that the tax on school entertainments and amusements in Michigan last year amounted to a million dollars. Schools have continuously raised the cost of admissions until school sports have priced themselves out of the amateur into the professional and commercial brackets. Schools run direct competition to other commercial entertainment. There's no good reason why they shouldn't pay the amusement tax if other business has to pay it.

Down by the Sycamore

"You boosted the school variety show in your column last week, and on the strength of the recommendation I went," declared a woman over the telephone Monday morning. "In your column this week please tell what you thought of the show."

This stage and music critic business will have to be abandoned if I am expected to take in all the shows and musical entertainments I write about. I don't go to the variety and so I have nothing to report of my own knowledge. After receiving the telephone call I did ask several people what they thought of the show. The consensus was that most of the acts were good but that a few might better have been left out because they were not in good taste. They compromised what should be school ideals.

To my youngest daughter and three grandchildren was left the decision whether they would go to the variety show or the Hospital circus over in Lansing. They chose the circus and we had a great time. The high acts and the acrobatics at the circus were the best I have ever seen—and the first the youngsters had seen. It was a profitable afternoon.

Before the circus an elephant, or a tiger or a seal had been just a picture in the story book to my four young guests. Their eyes almost popped out of their heads when they saw the animals in the flesh and when they saw the trapeze artists way up at the top of the building.

Until I went to the circus I considered George Mirthum had worked a miracle with the Mason school band, teaching youngsters to play clarinets, flutes, cornets, trombones and other instruments. In the circus were two seals who had been taught to play musical instruments. They did two concert numbers. It's a wonder that some school board doesn't hire the seal trainer to head up a school band. He might even take his seals along with him.

If I were in the circus I would rather play in the seal band than do the high balancing act or perform on those high trapezes. A mistake in the music does no great damage. One mistake on the high wire means death. It would be hard to recruit musicians if there was such a penalty for every mistake. On the other hand, if there was a death penalty for hitting a wrong note there would probably be fewer mistakes made by musicians.

Mason people had the privilege last week of meeting one of the men who stir up Smucker's apple butter and other jellies and jams made by the Smuckers at Orrville, Ohio. Hoyt J. Weaver of the Smucker firm was in Mason to visit his brother, Ben V. A. Weaver, field man for the H. W. Madison company. Smucker's apple butter is made out of cider.

I did my best to have Hoyt Weaver drive over to Thady Hamilton's jail works in Bunker Hill to get the Hamilton recipe for sour jell. Weaver couldn't take the time this trip but he has promised to come back again and visit Thady. The Hamilton jell works has been closed down because there were not enough apples available to meet the demand for sour jell and Thady just couldn't stand disappointing friends. So he quit. The Smucker firm makes the best apple butter (to my taste) now on the market and I know the Smuckers would do justice to the Hamilton recipe.

A woman out in Aurelius reported that she feels better and looks younger now that she is taking care of her feet instead of her face.

Texans Mix History and Progress In Bustling City of San Antonio

By V. J. Brown

Here it is Sunday, March 6, 1949, at San Antonio which prides itself on its being referred to as the "City of Romance." Actually it has become about as bustling and bustling a city as can be found anywhere. The war brought hundreds of thousands of the young men of America here to receive training, chiefly for the air services, but including also many other branches of the armed services. The city is ambitious and does not intend that peace time shall be any less an asset than the days of war.

San Antonio boasts a population approaching the half million mark, and when the suburbs are counted in, the area will unquestionably far exceed that figure in population. San Antonio is an old city with young ideas.

Alamo Square in downtown San Antonio has as its center the Old Alamo, a mission established here by the Franciscan fathers as long ago as 1718. The present structure, the cornerstone of which was laid in 1744, is in perfect condition with the grounds inside its outer walls well cared for. It was here that Colonel Travis, Davy Crockett and 184 other Texans met their death at the hands of a Mexican army of invasion on March 6, 1836, exactly 113 years ago today. Members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas have arranged a program and are holding ceremonies in memory of the heroes who fought for the independence of the republic in its early days.

But all this is recent history. San Antonio was first a village of Comanche Indians as early as 1500. By 1722 Spanish soldiers began intermarrying with the Indian maidens, and from that time to this day this city has been the center of much of the life of the republic and later, the state of Texas.

Texas is the only state of the Union which bears the distinction of having existed under six flags. First there came the French who laid claim to the whole region but did nothing to hold it. It was because of this that the Spanish king sent the Franciscan fathers here to establish missions and to Christianize the Indians and finally establish a government and hold the region. When Mexico rebelled against Spain, that country laid claim to the territory.

Then came the heroic battles of 1836 when Texas formed its own independent republic with the Lone Star as its emblem. Later it entered the Union only to secede in 1861 and join the Confederacy. At the end of that war it again took up the Stars and Stripes and today points with unqualified pride to its record in the Spanish-American war and in World Wars I and II.

So when I say that San Antonio is a city, both ancient and modern, I have only to point to the Alamo where more than 200,000 visitors and students of history come each year, and then across the street to the towering Medical Arts building and to the great new postoffice building next door and down the street to one of the largest department stores in all America. There is the proof that San Antonio has not forgotten the pioneer and he allowed himself to stagnate with its romantic and adventurous history.

If this is not enough proof, then we will drive a few blocks to what was once the old village of La Villita. During depression days WPA stored this old town, dug down for the original foundations and re-erected these old homes and other structures which once had made up a good-sized town. The WPA took over and installed shops for crafts and arts and now La Villita ties with Williamsburg as a tourist and student attraction.

Across the square stands the old palace of the Spanish governors. Here again the people of San Antonio have shown their interest in the history of the region and have demonstrated that interest by voting a bond issue to purchase the long neglected property, to restore it to its original condition of Spanish charm, to refurbish it as nearly as possible as it was during the Spanish regime and to throw it open to the public. Thousands stream through its halls and chambers and about the beautiful garden patio. But again as you come out the front door of the old palace you raise your eyes to the towering Frost National Bank building and across to a modern city hall and across from that to a fine county building and agree that San Antonions do not spend all their time at history lessons.

On the way from Edinburg in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to San Antonio we came by way of the old town of Rio Grande City, and along the border highway to Laredo and then over what is largely a range country to this city.

The highway closely parallels the Rio Grande. At the town bearing the name of the river we find a monument which tells us that in 1740 one Laredo de la Victoria located there and established a mission. Nearby is a U. S. army post, used until the close of World War II but now in possession of a school district. Typical of army posts everywhere, there are many permanent buildings. Some of these are being used as a junior college, some for education of the G. I.s and some for other purposes. What surprised us most was the statement that the board of education is renting a sufficient number of dwellings, storehouses, etc., so that the income makes the venture almost self-supporting.

The town itself is pretty much run down. Most of the old structures such as stores, hotels and dwellings are just falling apart. It appears to be cheaper or at least more feasible to build new, rather than to repair.

San Ygnacio stands at the very brink of the river's edge. The river was running just below flood tide that day, and we stood looking across its muddy waters directly into another town of about the same size on the Mexican side. There is no bridge at that point and San Ygnacio is not supposed to be a port of entry, but I am willing to wager that at low water a lot of so-called Latin-American aliens get their feet or their backs wet at that point.

A little farther westward the Texas highway department has provided a shelter and some picnic facilities between the highway and the river and up from the traveled portion on quite a knoll for that country. Here the river makes a wide swing. It is a delightful spot and the view across into Old Mexico makes a real picture.

Laredo is a bustling border city of 60,000. Here we made an overnight stay and took the next forenoon for a look around. Laredo is at one corner of a quadrangle made up of that city, Monterey 145 miles southward in Mexico and Reynosa 142 miles north eastward where one crosses over to Hidalgo in Texas a few miles south of Pharr and McAllen. If one desires a longer Mexican tour he drives on from Monterey to Ciudad Victoria and then back to the United States at Brownsville, a total distance of about 525 miles. Laredo has many hotels, scores of the most modern motels and tourist courts, and attracts many winter tourists who say they like Laredo climate best of all.

Until recently the country between Laredo and San Antonio has remained strictly cattle and sheep range or brush country. But now with the big caterpillar tractors and bulldozer equipment, the ranchers are clearing their land for cotton raising and for grass. Just a ride along the road will tell the observer that one acre of cleared land planted to the new grasses now available will produce more beef and better beef than 40 acres of old-fashioned mesquite and sage brush. They do have some trouble with erosion from the high winds which prevail at certain seasons and from the sudden and heavy downpours of rain that come now and then. Many are clearing off smaller arens and leaving sections in brush for shelter for both the land and the cattle.

At Catilla, the trail of the missionaries who came across the river from Mexico into Texas as early as 1680, crosses on fine new macadam road. The trail goes northeast to Pleasanton and thence north to San Antonio. We go more direct. Here again we have the old and the new for here 1,100 acres have been acquired and are now in cultivation for the raising of mulberry trees for silk worm culture.

Many acres are already planted but the half dozen cattle and cotton raisers around the gas station where I stopped to get gas and to "gas" up, shook their heads as if they were in doubt about the future of the silk worm business. They appeared not to know too much about it and to care less. I cannot close without this—here in San Antonio we are enjoying a real spring. Many flowers are in full bloom—red bud and pearbloom and camellias among the shrubs, irises and sweet williams and carnation plants among the plants, to say nothing of tulips and narcissus and hyacinth. Today as we came from church the thermometer (well in the shade) stood at 88.

School Election

Monday, March 21, 1949

For qualified electors of school district No. 1 fr'l., city of Mason and twp. of Vevay.

Special meeting at 11:30 a. m., BALLOTING FROM 12:00 NOON TO 8:00 P. M. Gymnasium, Mason school.

It is the duty of the Board of Education to survey and determine the educational needs of the community and report them to the patrons of the district. This solemn obligation has been fulfilled.

The Board of Education has deemed it wise and necessary to present to the qualified electors the opportunity to provide a new elementary school.

The need has been apparent to all for a number of years. The site has been selected for its value to those whom it will serve. The building as proposed is a thing of permanency and beauty, designed for our particular needs; the financing is not to be burdensome because Mason can provide this building at very little millage in excess of what many districts now pay for operation alone.

Through the Ingham County News, through meetings with different groups and representatives of the various organizations and through a brochure, the needs, the type of building proposed, the site, the cost and the method of payment have been presented.

The responsibility of providing adequate physical school facilities lies with the electors of this district. Every qualified elector should feel that it is not only a privilege but a duty to vote on this important issue. When you cast your ballot think of our boys and girls.
