

SPRINGTIME IN MICHIGAN is something to write home about, said Miss Mahin Dokht Aghvelli. She does her writing in beautiful Persian script and her home is near Teheran in Iran. She is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn Diehl, Dansville. She had been admiring one of the magnolia bushes in front of the Diehl home.

Young Woman from Iran Learns New Ways Quickly

Learning new ways quickly is Miss Mahin Dokht Aghvelli of Iran. She is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorn Diehl, Dansville. She is an International Farm Youth Exchange delegate, sponsored by the Ford Foundation through the National 4-H Club Foundation and the cooperative extension service.

Miss Aghvelli is learning more by sight than by sound. She knows only a few words of English and so far, she has met one in Ingham who can speak Persian.

In a village near Teheran Miss Aghvelli is an extension worker, instructing people of one of the oldest settled countries in new ways. She was sent to the United States as an IFYE delegate to learn more about those new ways.

She'll be at the Diehl home until May 23. For the following month she'll be at the Livingston county farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bauer, near Webberville. From June 14 to July 3 she'll be a guest at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Bauer near Grand Ledge, and then at Springport, in the home of Mrs. Marie Hasenick of Jackson county, for a week. After that will come a gathering of all IFYE delegates at the University of Wisconsin and then 2 months on farms and ranches in Colorado before the delegates report in Washington and New York.

Miss Aghvelli is spending much of her time now with a Persian-English dictionary. She speaks a little French.

The visitor from Iran was partially prepared for her experiences in the United States. A brother came to the United States to take training with the U. S. air force and told his sister what to expect in the way of American living.

Although Miss Aghvelli is a Mohammedan, she attended Methodist church services at Dansville Sunday, with only a few glances toward Mecca. She has been invited to extension club meetings, 4-H Service club parties, Farm Bureau and Grange activities and Dansville Agricultural school events.

She writes often to her mother, her 2 sisters and 4 brothers in Iran, telling them of her experiences. She is an accomplished seamstress, knits with great skill and is a good cook. She is determined to learn how to milk the big Holsteins on the Diehl farm. She has milked goats in Iran and the small native cows of Iran but she never saw such generous cows as at Diehlfelds.

Iran is about one-fifth the size of the United States. It is bounded on the north by the U. S. S. R. and the Caspian sea, on the east by Afghanistan and Pakistan, on the south by the Arabian sea and the Persian gulf and on the west by Iraq and Turkey. Most of the country is semi-arid.

There were 5 from Iran, 3 young men and 2 young women, chosen as IFYE delegates this year. They first went to Beirut, leaving there April 4 by the Atlantic line for Naples. At Naples they boarded the Cristoforo Colombo of the Italian Line, sailing April 10 for New York. They arrived in New York April 18 and were in New York and Washington for 5 days attending orientation sessions with delegates from other countries until April 23. Miss Aghvelli came to Michigan State University Friday, where Mr. and Mrs. Diehl met her and greeted her as their guest for a month—and a pleasant month it promises to be.

Census Takers Learn Duties On Child Tally

Enumerators assigned to the annual school census are studying instructions received at Mason Tuesday. Seventy-five of the enumerators who will count the 20,000 children in the county outside of Lansing met with Alton J. Stroud, county school superintendent.

Herebefore the census has been taken only to determine the number of children in each age group between birth and 20. Something has been added this year, explained Stroud. That's to discover children with physical and mental handicaps.

The census is taken, Stroud told enumerators, so that school officials may be able to predict future building needs and teacher requirements, and as a basis for primary money distribution.

The handicapped children are being listed for the first time this year, Stroud explained, so that an educational program may be developed for them. If the national average on handicapped children holds in Ingham, the county superintendent said, about 400 handicapped children between birth and 20 will be discovered.

Census workers are expected to begin work May 10 and to complete their count by May 31. The count is based on totals as of May 31.

Ride in Trailer Ends in Hospital

Fun of riding in a trailer ended in pain for Jimmy Leasure, 6, last Thursday. He is in St. Lawrence hospital, Lansing, recovering from a fractured skull, a broken nose and gashes about his face.

Jimmy and his sister, Jameen, 7, were riding in a small trailer on Coy road, the trailer being attached to a tractor driven by the father, Marvin J. Leasure. He had taken the tractor and trailer to a neighbor's to get a small concrete mixer. The mixer was attached to the trailer. As the 3-unit train joggled across the Michigan Central tracks the tractor-trailer hitch separated. The trailer dropped and the mixer toppled onto it. The mixer struck the boy on the head.

For 5 days the boy was listed as critical. On Tuesday his condition took a turn for the better. The girl was cut and bruised, not seriously hurt.

Committee Backs Stroppe's Decision

Ingham's new civil defense headquarters will be in the John Angell building north of Mason—that is, if Angell will approve rewording of a new lease prescribed by the county CD committee Wednesday afternoon.

The committee's agreement was the welcome relief to Ralph Stroppe, CD commander. On his own, he and Angell signed a lease for the building early in April only to have it declared invalid by the county board of supervisors and Prosecutor Jack Warren. Stroppe, after entering into the invalid lease with Angell had ordered and partly installed several hundred dollars worth of partitions at county expense. Since declaring the first lease illegal, work on the remodeling has stopped.

The committee's decision Wednesday—and if Angell agrees to it—will permit Stroppe to continue construction in the building which will cost the county $175 rental plus utility expenses monthly in addition to remodeling costs.

The new lease specifies a 4-year lease with an option to quit the building at the end of 2 years. The Stroppe-Angell deal would have let the county re-lease the building at the end of 2 years, but would have permitted Angell to renege the monthly rent.

Lavey Speaks Up

"The county is already going to foot the bill for all of this remodeling," declared Joseph Lavey, Lansing supervisor, Lansing city attorney and an outspoken critic of Stroppe. "It's certainly poor business on the part of the county to sign a lease which would turn this remodeling investment over to Angell at the end of 2 years should the county not want to continue renting the building."

The Angell building contains about 3,000 square feet of which Stroppe has spread his partitions to encompass about 2,000 feet. The CD suite includes 3 private offices and an assembly hall plus a large storage room. Stroppe has suggested that the extra 1,000 feet can be used by other county officers who might enjoy the fresh air on Mason's north side.

Angell is Provoked

Angell almost upset the apple cart Wednesday just after the committee, over the objections of Lavey, had agreed to lease the building. Miffed over the poor publicity he'd received and the "embarrassing situation" he's been in since signing the lease with Stroppe, Angell jumped the committee as it was adjourning from an inspection tour of the Angell building.

"You can take your junk out of my building and forget the whole thing," declared Angell. "I'm not going to have any more trouble with you. I've had enough. You'll pay me for the light and heat you've used, too, or else."

Angell defended Stroppe as a soldier of 2 wars and a former state police chief.

"I'd take Stroppe's word for the truth before I would argue on this committee," said Angell.

Lavey said something about being happy to haul the junk out of the building and that the committee didn't have to stand for such insults and threats.

"We might have some opinions about you, too," Lavey countered.

Angell Becomes Angel

From then on, the CD committee attempted to smooth Angell's feathers. The meeting broke up, without discussing whether or not Angell will accept the new lease. If he doesn't, then it will be up to the CD committee to consider an alternative.

Only One Location

After committee action last Wednesday, Stroppe was ordered to search for other possible quarters. His search, he explained to the committee Wednesday, produced no results. He said that neither Abel real estate of Mason nor Buss Bailey real estate of Holt knew of any suitable CD locations. He said he had heard of a brick building in Dansville, but couldn't find out who owned it. Anyway, he said it wouldn't be satisfactory. He declared that the Dansville location lacked suitable restaurant facilities, that it would mean undue driving to and from the headquarters and that there is quite a parking problem in Dansville.

Stroppe also read a letter from the Mason Chamber of Commerce suggesting that the committee consider 3300 square feet of space above Western Auto store and Kent Shop which is owned by R. Glen Dunn and Glen Dunn. Stroppe said the location is out of the question because it is up a flight of stairs, that operating of a radio in CD headquarters wouldn't work in such a metropolitan area as Mason, that space wasn't adequate for CD schooling sessions and that parking space would be inadequate for the 50 or 60 cars which frequent CD headquarters.

Lavey Lowers Boom

"What you really mean is that there isn't any place on earth that is adequate except the Angell property," declared Lavey. "I'll be frank with you, Ralph, I don't like the methods you've used to obligate the county to swallow this Angell location. Civilian defense doesn't require any luxury quarters and it seems uncanny to me that other less expensive locations can't be found. It's lucky Angell built this building or else we would have to forget civilian defense for lack of such wonderful quarters."

"The trouble with you is," summed up Lavey, "You act like a tin god whose every decision is final. You want to build up an army unit and will have it no other way."

Stroppe didn't deny it.

Just before the vote to lease the Angell property, Supervisor Raymond Wilcox of Lansing pointed out that the increased expenditure for the larger quarters will require board of supervisors action for additional funds over the CD 1957-58 budget.

School District Asks for Bids

Mason's school board is advertising for bids on construction of a 6-room addition to Cedar Street elementary school. Bids will be received up until 7:30 Thursday night, May 23.

When the addition is completed, sixth-graders now at Jefferson school will attend Cedar Street school.

Stapert, Pratt, Bulthuis, Spruill & Crothers, Inc., Kalamazoo, is the firm of architects handling the planning and engineering on the addition.

Cedar Street school was completed in 1953. It now has 6 classrooms plus a big kindergarten room. Heating and ventilating facilities are adequate to meet the needs of the additional 6 rooms, architects said.

Onondaga Dogs Make Big Kill

Two dogs killed 42 ewes and lambs in the Gale McMichael flock at Onondaga Wednesday of last week. McMichael shot and killed one dog and hit another, but the second raider made its getaway, said Clay Hulett, county dog warden. McMichael was able to give a description of the second dog. The one killed was a mongrel-bred cocker.

McMichael was awakened by the bleating of sheep about 4 o'clock in the morning. He had driven his flock of 100 to the barnyard the night before for shearing the next day. McMichael grabbed his shotgun and went into action. Eleven ewes and 31 lambs had fallen victim to the dogs.

Hulett said that if the second dog can be found it will be possible for the board of supervisors to launch civil action against the owners to collect the amount of damage paid by the county to McMichael from the livestock fund.

State law provides that all dogs, both city and country dogs, must be confined or on leash between the hours of sunset and sunrise. State law also gives property owners the right to shoot on sight any dog which comes onto their property to attack or harry livestock.

Committees Ask For Big Gifts

Thursday, members of the 3 advance gift committees of the $500,000 Mason hospital campaign, began their calls on a group of selected residents and workers, mainly in Mason. They will seek 30-month pledges to the fund, which will be used to build a new 36-bed hospital on East Columbia street.

While everyone with an income both in Mason and the surrounding territory will eventually be asked to do their fair share, the general public campaign will not begin until May 16. Those who are not called upon at this time by the advance gift committees will be visited by members of 3 other soliciting committees in the latter part of May.

Last night campaign leaders from all committees, as well as all members of the advance gift committees had a kickoff dinner for the advance phase of the campaign at the Methodist church. Howard F. Seibert, general chairman of the campaign, presided. Those participating included Al Rice, chairman of the business and industry committee, J. B. Dean and Dr. D. R. Lethbridge, co-chairmen of the special gifts committee, Mrs. William E. Clark, chairman of the women's division of the clubs and organizations committee, and Nels C. Ferriby, chairman of the men's division of the same committee.

Seibert pointed out that the success of the campaign rests in large measure on the work of the advance gift committees in that they will call upon individuals, firms, corporations and their employees, and that while the work of other committees will be no less important, it is from the advance gift committees that the bulk of the pledges dollarwise is expected to come.

Seibert stressed the fact that while no one will attempt to say what anyone should give, real sacrificial giving is necessary if the goal is to be achieved. This question must be determined by everyone for himself after he has seriously considered the vital need and what the new hospital can mean in better health protection for each family or business group, he explained.

He pointed out that those financially able to do so, it is hoped, will avail themselves of the memorial program under which units in the new hospital may be selected as memorials or tributes to be marked by suitable plaques. Seibert added that early in the campaign substantial gifts will be particularly helpful in acting as pace-setters for others; and as evidence to the whole community that those who can afford to be generous are taking the lead by doing their fair share.

Seibert, Rice, Mrs. Nels Ferriby and Herbert C. Fickes, campaign consultant, in their talks Wednesday night declared that participation in the campaign provides opportunity to revitalize and unify the community. A community with such promising growth needs the hospital, they said.

All of those who will be called upon by members of the advance gift committee, Seibert said, will be mailed a copy of the 16-page campaign booklet "The Day You Need Your Hospital" as well as a folder containing the answers to 30 questions most frequently asked about the campaign.

The advance gift committees will have their first report dinner next Wednesday evening, May 8, at St. James church, Mason, when the results of the first week's solicitation will be made known.

The other 3 committees, public service, headed by Frank K. (Tex) Evans; teams, headed by Robert E. Ware; and area, headed by David Diehl, will have their kickoff dinner meeting on May 15 at 6:30 at American Legion hall, and will begin calling on their prospects the next day.

Robin Delays Newspaper Ad

"There's a want ad missing from the Ingham County News this week, held up by a robin. Dewey Fuller of Haslett intended to advertise a tractor for sale. He had worked on the tractor to get it ready for sale. When he went to check it again Tuesday morning he discovered that a robin had built a nest in a coffee can he had left on the seat last week and in the nest were 4 blue eggs.

Dewey just didn't have the heart to sell the tractor before the little robins are through with the nest. He asked to have the ad delayed.

Mason Girl Wins Merit Scholarship

Roberta Rice is among the 830 brilliant boys and girls classified as national merit scholars of 1957. She has been granted a National Merit scholarship to study electrical engineering at Michigan State university. She plans a career in electronics engineering.

The Mason scholar is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Rice. She is salutatorian of the Mason high school graduating class this year, having a percentage of standing of 3.903 out of a possible 4.00.

In addition to her scholastic achievement, Roberta has served as president of the Girl Scouts, and worthy advisor of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, plays in the school band and participated in forensics. For several summers she has been a music student at Interlochen national music camp. There she was a member of the all-state band.

Merit scholarships are awarded upon competitive tests. The Mason senior wrote her scholarship qualifying test October 24, which was a 2-hour, college aptitude examination. About 7,500 students—the highest scorers in each state—were advanced to the finals of the competition as a result of the qualifying tests. Then came the 3-hour scholastic aptitude tests on January 12, from which 7,200 became qualifiers for merit scholarships. Further evaluation was then made by a committee. To choose the 830 recipients, the panel considered qualities of leadership, school and community citizenship, extra-curricular activities and high school grades as well as test scores.

Thirty-five of the scholarships were awarded to Michigan students. Dean C. Luhrs of Lansing Everett is among the winners.

The merit scholars and the colleges they have chosen to attend will share more than $4,000,000 in scholarship aid provided by 57 companies and foundations. The nationwide competition is conducted by the National Merit Scholarship corporation, which annually searches the nation for its most able high school seniors.

More than 162,000 students, better than 10% of the nation's entire high school enrollment, entered the competition this year as the nominees of 12,500 high schools.

Each merit scholarship provides its winner with funds needed to attend the college of his choice for 4 years. Family resources, summer earnings of the student, and college costs are all considered in determining the amount a company is paying each award. Grants to merit scholars vary from a minimum honorary award of $100 a year for the 4-year college course to more than $2,000 a year in cases of great need. The average student's stipend is $650 a year.

Merit scholars have selected the colleges they prefer to attend. Since tuition seldom covers the actual cost of educating a student, each merit scholarship includes an educational supplement to the college to help it defray its cost in educating a merit scholar.

According to John M. Stalaker, president of the National Merit Scholarship corporation, there is no shortage of students of unusual ability.

"This year's crop of outstanding students exceeds all expectations," Stalaker said. "We have identified thousands of them in this grass-roots search for talented youngsters. The response of business and industry to the need for scholarship aid has been as gratifying as the performance of the students."

"This is only the second year of operation of the merit program," Stalaker explained. "To the 57 companies, foundations and professional groups that make hundreds of these merit scholarships possible, should go the thanks of the nation. We need the educated talents of these merit scholars."

Merit scholarships are named after the companies and other private groups which provide funds for awards. Largest sponsor is Sears-Roebuck Foundation, which awards 100 scholarships annually at a cost of $500,000. International Business Machines, F. W. Woolworth, General Foods, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Time, Inc., Commercial Investment Trust, Upjohn, National Distillers, Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), B. F. Goodrich and International Nickel are among the other sponsors. The Ford Foundation granted $200,000 and the Carnegie Corporation of New York added $500,000 to initiate the program in 1955.

Family Leaves For Iraq Post

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tiedke and their son, Scott, 2½, are leaving Mason next week, heading toward Iraq. They intend to remain there 2 years while Tiedke serves as deputy chief of the community development division of the U. S. international cooperative administration.

While they have never been in the Middle East before, Mr. and Mrs. Tiedke and even their son are seasoned travelers. The parents have both been to Europe and they were in Cuba when their son was born. In Cuba Tiedke served with the Organization of American States. In Mason the family home is at 406 East Elm.

To take the foreign assignment Tiedke received a leave from his teaching post at Michigan State. He is a professor of anthropology.

The Iraq headquarters of the international cooperative administration are at Baghdad. Tiedke's assignment calls for extensive travel throughout the country in a village self-help program.

For 3 weeks the Tiedkes will be in Washington and then Mr. Tiedke must go to Jamaica for a week of inspection work. After that they will go by air to Baghdad.

Mason Hits Halfway Point With Perfect League Mark

Coach Bob Cone and his Mason baseball team maintained its hot pace Tuesday afternoon with a 10-5 winning streak over Holt.

Mason pointed Holt pitching for 13 hits, including 2 doubles and a triple. Stan Eastman did the hurling for Holt. He gave up

2 walks and struck out 6 but still the runs came across.

Dick Wheeler was on the mound for Mason. He gave up 2 walks and 6 hits. He also struck out 6.

Holt's ball of fire, Bob Tuttle, clobbered one of Wheeler's fast pitches over the fence and into the football field for 2-run homer in the fourth inning. Holt picked another run up in the fifth on a walk and 2 singles and in the seventh 2 more runs crossed the plate on 2 errors and a single.

Mason was in front all the way, though. In the second inning the Bulldogs used 3 singles and Duane Clark's double to score 3 runs. In the third inning 2 singles and a walk mixed with some Holt errors produced 3 more runs.

Mason's big inning was the fifth. The Bulldogs had 10 men parage to the plate. Six of them scored on 5 hits, including Jerry Lumianski's triple and Gary Caltrider's double.

Clark was Mason's batting star. He stopped a hitting slump with 3 hits in 3 trips, including his double.

Gary Caltrider hit 2 for 3 and so did Tom Clipper. Ken Brown broke into the lineup in the outfield and displayed a big stick at the plate. He hit 2 for 4.

Bob Tuttle and Bob Foster were the only Rams to collect more than one hit. Tuttle coupled his home run with a single and Foster hit 2 singles.

With the season half out of the way Mason is in the driver's seat. The Bulldogs travel to Howell Friday. So far they have beat all teams in the league once.

Mason's pitching and hitting have been outstanding so far. Wheeler and Dart Stone are experienced pitchers. Behind this pair is Doug Hilton, a fireballing righthander.

Bulldogs Add Everett to List

Mason's red hot baseball team made it 5 wins in 5 starts Monday night with an 11-1 victory over Everett.

Doug Hilton did the hurling for Mason. He gave up only 2 hits, walked only 2 and struck out 7. Dick Wheeler took over for Hilton in the fifth inning.

While Hilton was taming the Vikings Mason's usually potent hitters were having trouble with the slants of Tom Sweeney and Jerry Shoup. Mason managed to collect 6 hits, a low total compared to other games, but 4 of the safeties went for doubles and the hits were bunched with walks and fifth inning errors to produce 7 runs.

Gary Caltrider's batting percentage was the highest. He hit a single in one appearance at the plate.

Dart Stone, Jerry Lumianski, Dick Wheeler and Tom Clipper smacked the doubles.

Mason confined its scoring to 3 innings. The Bulldogs took a one-run lead in the third inning. Everett tied the score in the first of the fifth but then Mason broke the game wide open with its 7-run spree in the last of the fifth.

For good measure Mason added 3 more runs in the sixth inning.

The game was marred with several ribarbs.

Delinquent Taxes Will Be Offered At Sale Tuesday

Under court order County Treasurer Laurence Parker will sell delinquent taxes to the highest bidder at Mason Tuesday. Offered at sale will be taxes delinquent for 1954 and prior years.

There were 811 descriptions on the advertised list but payments have slimmed the total down to below 300. By sale time Tuesday the list will probably be down to 225, the county treasurer estimated.

If the selling goes as it has in previous years, most of the Ingham buyers will be bidding for investment, not for possession, Parker said.

Owners of property whose taxes are sold have a year in which to redeem their property through the treasurer's office, by paying the taxes plus 1% per month on the sale price. There is then another 6-month period during which redemption may be made through the county clerk's office by paying the taxes with 50% added and plus $5 per description.

Delinquent taxes paid Friday and Monday will be withdrawn from Tuesday's sale, Parker stated.

Surgeon Praises First Aid Work

Demonstration of first aid work on a Mason Explorer Scout Sunday afternoon drew praise from a Lansing surgeon. The surgeon said the splints applied to David White's arm by Jim Armstrong, Mason Explorer leader, prevented further damage. Applying the first aid treatment before the boy was moved lessened the time the boy will have to wear a cast, doctors at Sparrow hospital said.

The White boy was at the rear of the Forrest Hill farm home on Dexter Trail, Armstrong, Austin Frye, Floyd Watson and Lynn Bullen were helping Hill on archery butts. David White, 15, and some other boys were playing in trees. David fell, breaking his left arm above the elbow. Armstrong, who had applied many a splint in demonstration work, applied them to the boy's arm. Armstrong and Hill brought the boy to Mason in a truck and placed him in an ambulance for the ride to Lansing. He'll be here several days yet. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth White. He's in the ninth grade at Mason high school.

Issue Days Set On Surplus Food

Not next week, but the week after, will surplus foods be issued to those entitled to them.

Because the month of May starts off on a Wednesday, there is apt to be confusion over distribution days for surplus foods, announced Daryl Minnis, relief administrator. The schedule calls for those qualified to pick up their surplus foods on the second Tuesdays of the month and the 2 following days. That will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 14, 15 and 16, Minnis pointed out, instead of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Mason's Hospital Will Resemble This

This sketch, by Smith, Hinckman & Grylls Associates, Inc. of Detroit, architects for the new hospital, shows what the exterior will look like. It will contain 21,106 square feet of fire-resistant construction, against the 3,300 square feet of the present hospital.

The integrated type of design, with all rooms on one floor, lends itself to minimum staffing, maximum nurse efficiency, more economical construction and operation, plus the full medical, surgical and obstetrical service of the most modern hospital.

There will be a major operating room, a minor operating room, a post-operative recovery room (found only in the most modern hospitals) a full emergency suite, including an emergency operating room; 36 patient beds, with basic facilities built in to care for an additional 28 beds if it is necessary to add them at a later date. This feature will keep the cost of new beds to a minimum. There will be oxygen piped into every room; a new maternity suite, which can be expanded to meet peak loads; a separate children's department, a blood bank, an all electric kitchen; largely increased toilet facilities; full laboratory and X-ray facilities in their own departments; and a stand-by emergency generator to take over in case of electrical service failure.

The new hospital will sit about 250 feet back on a 5-acre plot, with entrances on 2 streets and ample parking.

Spring is a dangerous time of year for Michigan wildlife, and especially for deer in northern counties. Because highway right-of-ways are open to the sunshine, greenery appears on trees before it does in the deep forest. This draws deer to highways and makes them more liable to destruction by automobiles.

Friday Lions will patrol the business district from 4 p. m. to 9 p. m. with their cartons of bulbs.

On Monday and Tuesday they will move to the residential sections of Mason in a door to door selling campaign. On Monday and Tuesday, May 13 and 14 the rural areas will be canvassed. The final stage of the campaign will start Monday, May 20, when the Lions take orders from business establishments for their year's light bulb needs.

All kinds of bulbs will be sold, according to the team captains. Orders will be taken for outdoor floods, spots, heat lamps and other specialty lights. Orders will be filled promptly, they added.

Last year the club raised $900. Of this total almost half went for the club's sight preservation program in the form of glasses for the underprivileged children and the leaderdog training program. The rest went to the Boy Scouts, Mason band, recreation program and girls state. (Ingham County News photo.)

Work Draws Praise

I am so happy to know that the Bible stories have been allowed in our Mason schools. I feel our homes, our food, our country, its ideals, our very breath, are gifts from God.

From inquiry I have learned that Mr. Brooks' presents no creed—just the Bible stories, and also how much the children appreciate them. These things were taught me at home—but that isn't being done very much anymore, and I am just glad to know that there are those who are interested in others enough to devote their time to that study. More power to him.

CAP Protection

A few weeks ago, the members of Lansing Squadron 6374, Civil Air Patrol, were taking orders for angel food cakes in order to raise money to buy emergency equipment. One of the Mason cadets, in accordance to a city ordinance, asked for a permit from the Chamber of Commerce in order that she might take orders in the business places of Mason, but was refused one on the grounds that Civil Air Patrol does not benefit Mason. This is incorrect.

Michigan Wing 63, Civil Air Patrol, serves the entire state. Its volunteer members, serving without pay, are prepared at any time of the day or night to leave their homes, schools, or jobs to aid in distress areas within the boundaries of Michigan.

The importance of Civil Air Patrol will become more significant during the spring season, the time that tornadoes are prevalent. Civil Air Patrol squadrons served at the tornado area at nearby Flint.

As residents of Mason, we hope that such a disaster never comes to this area. But we want the people of Michigan to know that Civil Air Patrol squadrons throughout the state stand ready to assist them whenever and wherever disaster strikes.

Unannounced Visit

Though unannounced and certainly unheralded, Sunday was somewhat of a red letter day for me. Perhaps what is going through my mind might possibly be of some interest to some of your readers, especially some who lived in Mason prior and during the 1920s.

Yesterday afternoon my lovely wife Pauline and I decided to take a little ride out in 'the country' and during our leisurely jaunt we arrived in Mason. Something seemed to be tugging at my heartstrings to go to Mason. That particular urge was prompted, I believe, because of my interest to see and visit the new beautiful addition to the Mason Methodist church, which was my church from 1912 to about 1920.

We parked in front of the old edifice and gingerly entered, where I hundreds of times had entered before. There seemed to be no one present at that time, about 7:00 p. m. (Sunday) so Pauline and I went on a tour of inspection through the old as well as through the beautiful new sanctuary and the new church school rooms in the basement. We even observed a bit of seepage on the basement floors in the corridor and in the rest room.

I couldn't help but reminisce while inspecting the old as well as the new. I owe a great debt of gratitude to that church and to those who so faithfully served it during the years I was 'growing up' and the foundation of my character and preparation of the challenges to face me in later years was in the making and to many of the former pastors, such as Rev. Beebe, Rev. Quandt and Rev. Prescott, naming only a few. The many times I had played cornet solos in that church also came to my mind and how we so faithfully attended every meeting of the special revival services we used to have every winter in those years.

Then my mind wandered to my school days and how thankful I was to the many teachers who with patience and dedication helped us kids in another way to prepare for adulthood, thereby helping us to eventually find our niche in life. I remembered too, how the former high school burned down in the fall of 1920 and how we attended school all over town but even with such handicaps many others along with myself graduated in 1921.

Well, anyway, while we were still in the beautiful new sanctuary I couldn't resist the temptation to register in the book opened for all visitors. We tip-toed out in the same manner as we entered, feeling greatly blessed and uplifted.

On leaving the church premises I was almost on the verge of imposing on Rev. Norton by ringing his doorbell to tell him what I have today written. But I thought that, with his busy life, it would be better not to intrude. So instead I am intruding in this manner.

Yesterday was the first time I ever was in Mason without seeing at least one person I knew. There are many we could have seen, such as Bud Dunn, Mrs. Irwin or Mr. and Mrs. McArthur or Mac Dean with whom I traveled around the world in 1926-27. But the hour was getting late and so we quietly left Mason for our present home, where we have lived for over 24 years.

I thought you might be interested in my visit yesterday and my feeling of deep gratitude towards the Mason Methodist church, the Mason public schools and the community of Mason in general. The feeling of indebtedness is deeply imbedded in my heart.

Too Heavy a Load

The wires must have carried too heavy a load, remarked a Consumers Power workman Monday as a big crew had to jack up a pole which sank 3 feet through a storm sewer at Lansing and Ash streets. When the pole carrying power lines to the Wyeth plant and all the northwest section was placed several years ago it had been inadvertently placed about 2 feet above a storm sewer. Last week the sewer tile broke and the pole began to sag. As the water gushed up around the pole it continued to sink itself into the ground. It took a big crew to raise the pole and move it a few feet west without interrupting power service.

Church Honors Long Service

Mr. and Mrs. Leon North and family and Mrs. Mildred North attended Sunday morning service at Grace Evangelical U. B. church at Columbia and M-99. It was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Canedy in recognition of their many years of devoted service in the church. The church was built in 1896 and Mr. Canedy has worked in it ever since, and when services were held before that in the Rogers school house. Both were born in the neighborhood. Mrs. Canedy lived for some time in Grandt county with her husband, the late Burr Hartenberg, and Mr. Canedy was married in 1929 after Mr. Hartenberg's death. Mr. Canedy said he thinks he has held every church office except president of the Ladies Aid.

The service was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Canedy. They supposed they were attending a regular church service and almost decided to remain at home, because of car trouble. But their son, Wayland Hartenberg, took them.

When they entered they were pleased at the number present. Then they were puzzled when relatives and old-time friends came. After the opening service they were called to the front. A rose corsage was presented to Mrs. Canedy and a white carnation to him. They were given seats on the platform and the minister, Rev. Karl Flessner, and his wife read from a book, "This Is Your Life," which was listed in the church bulletin as the "sermon subject." There were many interesting accounts, serious and amusing, representing many hours of research by friends, neighbors and relatives.

After the program the memory book was presented to them, and a chicken dinner was served in the church dining room.

After dinner they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Hugger where gifts were presented to the honor guests.

LIFE with the Zimmermans

Time: 9:15 a. m. Thursday

Place: Zimmerman's

Janet: You know something Zim— with the sacredness of "Mother's Day" it always annoys me to have it put on such a commercial basis with all of this advertising.

Zim: You may be partly right but did it ever occur to you that most fast food give a gift to their mother's and APPRECIATE a few suggestions. Each merchant feels that his product would make the perfect gift and would like to have you know it.

For instance we would like our customers to consider several items we think their mother's might like.

Janet: Our Leacock luncheon and dinner cloths for instance that I bought in Chicago are lovely and some of our mothers who have kept them for a long time would like nothing better than a new piece of linen.

Zim: Which brings to mind meals and dishes and distowels— those new motto ones are tricky "First Catch Your Rabbit." If you had a few different motto towels it might take your mind off the dirty dishes! And then thinking of new dishes our new shipment of "Sunrise" pattern by Royal, 16 pieces for $2.98 is a good idea, too.

Janet: And now lets remind the folks of our traditional "Mother's Day" gift to our friends and customers—any item purchased for a "Mother's Day" gift will be "Gift Wrapped" by courtesy of Zimmerman's—no matter how large or small the gift—from a 32-piece set of Iragoiois chair to a handkerchief or pair of ear rings.

Janet and Zim together: Let's remember our mothers every day folks, and especially May 12th!

Couple Is Wed in East Lansing Church

Three bridesmaids in identical gowns of orchid taffeta and nylon preceded Miss Mariene Mae West down the altar of St. Thomas Aquinas church, East Lansing, Friday, April 26, when she became the bride of Clarence James Chard. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. West of Williamston, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chard are parents of the bridegroom.

Rev. Thomas Fitzgerald, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, Williamston, officiated at the doubling nuptials at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. White glads and snapdragons decorated the altar of the church for the ceremony.

The bride wore a short-sleeved, floor-length gown of French lace and tulle over satin for her wedding. The lace bodice was styled with a scalloped sash and neckline sprinkled with iridescents. The full, billowy tulle skirt featured tiers of lace and tulle cascading at either side. It formed a brush train in back. A tiny cap trimmed with seed pearls and sequins held in place her veil of silk illusion. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Attendants Gowned Alike
Miss Jean West of Williamston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Linda Burley and Miss Joyce Balecom. They wore identically-styled gowns of white nylon eyelet over orchid taffeta. Seed pearls and net with yellow chrysanthemums made up their headpieces. They carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Cheryl Lee Rupright was flower girl, and Tom Nichols carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Gordon Quinn was best man. Robert Burley and Larry Soule ushered guests to their pews.

Ham Dinner Is Served
Decorations were used in the orchid theme for the reception at Wheatfield Gleaner hall immediately after the ceremony. A ham dinner was served. Orchid chrysanthemums, yellow daffodils and white snapdragons were placed throughout the hall, and on the tables. A large, 3-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom centered the serving table. Miniature bridesmaids dressed in orchid gowns stood at either side of the miniature bride and groom on the lower tiers. Yellow roses, silver rings and lavender trim also decorated the cake. White satin ribbon-covered steps leading to the top.

Those who served were Mrs. Ford Lannon, Mrs. Ambrose Raymond, Miss Betty Bissell and Miss Bonnie Lannon. Miss Dawn Noble of East Lansing presided at the guest register.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. West selected a navy blue polka dot dress with matching accessories. Mrs. Chard donned a navy blue dress and corresponding accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white chrysanthemums.

The bride is a graduate of Williamston high school with the class of 1956. She is employed at

Daniel Boone, Trail Blazer
Thurs.-Fri.-Sat.

In story, song and poem the courageous feats of Daniel Boone has become a fabulous legend the world-over. "Daniel Boone, Trail Blazer," stars Bruce Bennett as Boone, Lon Chaney as the colorful Indian Chief Blackfish and Faron Young.

"Daniel Boone, Trail Blazer" is film fare for old and young alike, for this is the real Boone who led a group of settlers in 1775 to the Kentucky frontier settlement which later was known as Boonesborough. This is the Daniel Boone who could skillfully track a man or an animal as well or better than the Indian himself. He was an expert at imitating animal or bird calls and he spoke the language of the Indian tribes.

The eye-filling action is constant and it involves a curious period for Boone, who, in order to establish a settlement, must not only fight the Indians but the British, Red Coats and the renegade French, who are continually stirring up trouble among the natives.

FOX
Mister Cory
Thurs.-Fri.-Sat.

Aided by a script that takes an essentially melodramatic story and imparts persuasive realism to it with believable characters and some of the crispest dialogue on the screen, Tony Curtis achieves one of the outstanding performances of his career in "Mister Cory."

Tony not only makes a smooth and attractive figure as a youth from a Chicago slum who becomes the operator of a big-time gambling establishment but he also is so expert in giving shadings to a basically ruthless character that occasionally he can evoke sympathy and always understanding.

Harry H. Whitely Lived in Mason For a Few Years

Harry H. Whitely, 75, former Dowagiac publisher who died Thursday, lived in Mason as a boy. He died Thursday while visiting his son, Col. Hal Whitely at Fort Mead, Maryland. He and his wife were on their way home to Michigan from a Florida vacation.

Whitely retired as publisher of the Dowagiac paper last fall but had continued to write a column which was carried by many Michigan papers. He was a former state representative and state senator and for many years was a member of the state conservation commission.

Born in Gaylord, he attended Lansing high school and Michigan State before entering newspaper work in 1901. He was elected to the legislature in 1915 from the Presque Isle district, where his brother, Hal Whitely, is publisher of the Presque Isle Advance at Rogers City. After purchasing the Dowagiac daily, Harry Whitely was elected state senator from the Cass-Berrien district. He was appointed to the state conservation commission in 1927 and served continuously until 8 years ago.

Besides the son at whose home he died, and the widow, there are 2 daughters, Mrs. Lowell Livingston of Marshall and Mrs. Norman Johnson of Chicago; a son, Arthur, of San Francisco; the brother in Rogers City; and a sister, Mrs. N. C. Monroe of Rogers City.

Services were in Dowagiac. The body was brought to Mason for burial. Mr. Whitely's parents are buried in Maple Grove.

The awakening of Emily Wade

Emily Wade was a girl who had, always dreamed of buying a new car. Emily watched her pennies so when she saw a "medium-priced" car advertised for "only a few dollars more" than Ford she went to see it. "My heavens," she gasped when she saw the car, "it doesn't even have automatic transmission; that's one thing I particularly need. And I do think power steering and power brakes are a must." So Emily's dream evaporated. Then Emily stopped in to see her Ford Dealer, an amiable fellow, who showed her how to buy a luxurious Fairlane 500 with all the extras she wanted

DON'T FORGET!

If price is your number one consideration, your Ford Dealer can still deliver a new '57 Ford for less than any full-size car in America —and at a lower price than the stripped-down model of the "medium-priced" make. "This is a car a girl like me really wants," said Emily. And she bought it right then and there. Now you know what Emily knows . . . for a luxury car, plus extras, at a sensible price, logic directs you to Ford.

Read Matthew 27:50-56. The curtain of the temple was torn in two. (Matthew 27:51, RSV.)

When Jesus said, "It is finished," the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. The holy of holies was no more, the ceremonial law of Moses of no effect. Instead, grace now abounds to him who believes in the Son of man and Son of God who died on the cross. Because of His death and resurrection, fear has given way to faith in love and in the power of the new birth.

On the cross, Jesus exemplified the new gospel — forgiveness and love, reassurance and help, fellowship and stewardship, pain and prayer, earnestness and faith, vision and victory, and surrender and obedience.

Thus the power of sin has been broken. To him who accepts Christ as Lord and Saviour, Christ becomes alive in him. To him Christ becomes a Friend and a Brother, faithful unto the end. The believer himself becomes a priest, a son, and an heir of life eternal — both here and hereafter.

PRAYER
O Lord, destroy the curtain of sin which separates us from Thee. So may we always behold Thy loving face. Teach us to love Thee rather than to fear Thee, to trust and obey our Lord and Saviour. In His name. Amen.

Book Talk

Hours open to the public at Hall Memorial Branch Ingham County Library: Monday through Saturday, 2-5 p. m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:00-12:00, (during school year); Tuesday and Thursday, 7-9 p. m.; and Saturday, 10-12 a. m.

Thousands of Michigan people will view the building of the Mackinac bridge this summer. But before driving over it this fall be sure and read a new book at the Ingham county library, "DISASTER AT DUNDEE," by John Prebble. This book describes how strong winds ripped a new bridge from its foundations in Scotland in 1879. It was an indestructible bridge, they said. Of course, such a thing couldn't happen today. Razing of the Barnes mansion in Lansing has brought with it a breath of nostalgia and a wave of scavengers. Students and collectors of antiques have been at the site, with a backwash of interest reflected at the Hall Memorial library. Fortunately, the book collection has improved along those lines as well. For example, there is a well-illustrated volume on cigar store Indians, those upstanding memories of the retailers of yesterday. One of the authors, A. W. Pendergast, is described as "the most fabulous wooden Indian man since Edward Hen began dealing in wooden braves a century ago in New York." Today, these immobile salesmen are worth much more than their original price. One famous example is the 6'9" Seneca John, now on display at the Edison Institute in Dearborn. The book is entitled "CIGAR STORE FIGURES." The encouragement of thrift in the younger generation doesn't have the verve it used to have. We see in OLD MECHANICAL BANKS that today's versions in plastic are tame in comparison. Even adults would save more with the aid of the old "Bear Hunt" bank. In this bank, a coin is placed in the Indian's gun. At the pressing of a lever, a cap explodes and the coin is shot into the bear. Another fascinator is the "Bad Accident Bank," whose cast includes a man riding a mule-drawn cart with a small boy standing beside the mule. Place a coin under the feet of the driver, press a lever, the boy jumps into the road, frightening the mule. As the mule rears, the cart and driver are thrown backwards. With the coin falling into the body of the cart. How could anyone resist that? Most of these toy banks are in the hand of private collectors.

Keep the prospect thinking and saying "yes" is some of the advice offered by Elmer Wheeler in "TESTED WAYS TO CLOSE THE SALE." He also shows salesmen how to handle objections, how to overcome stalling tactics, and how to avoid tipping off the close. Wheeler is noted for his word studies in selling, and for his preference for selling the "sizzle" instead of the steak. As yet, he has not been able to sell the "hole" instead of the doughnut.

While Ingham county is proud of the oats already up, we'll have to take a back seat to Paul Bunyan. One year Paul's men set out about 800 acres of led pencil plants. It was a good spring and pretty soon the lead pencil plants got to 6 inches high and started to rubber. That's part of one our lumberjacks used to hear from tall tale artists in Maine, the Great Lakes, and the Canadian wilds. E. C. Beck has collected them in "THEY KNEW PAUL BUNYAN." A recent addition to the library's Michigan collection, the book contains many ballads of the lumber camps. The University of Michigan Press just also published Beck's "SONGS OF THE MICHIGAN LUMBERJACKS AND LORE OF THE LUMBER CAMPS." As we view with alarm the present condition of financing in the state, let us hark back to 1837. For Ingham county, the nearest bank was the Jackson County bank in Jacksonburgh. In Harold L. Bowen's STATE BANK NOTES OF MICHIGAN we find the following description of that bank:

Gay Nineties Is Theme of All-Hi Banquet

The 35th annual all-hi banquet was Thursday evening in the school gymnasium with about 300 in attendance. The theme of this year's banquet was the "Gay Nineties," and tables were decorated by the various classes in keeping with this emphasis.

The dinner was prepared by girls of the homemaking department, under the direction of Mrs. Margie Briggs.

Garnett Wheaton presented the PFA DeKalb award to Roylyn Voss for his outstanding work in school and in the PFA farming program. He also introduced the 4 state farmers, Gerald Baker, Kenneth Rice, Wilmer Parson and Carl Minnis.

Carl Minnis, president of this year's chapter, introduced the officers for next year. They are: John Dorn, president; Robert Mead, vice-president; Gary Maynard, secretary; Leland Townsend, reporter; and Roger Cook, sentinal.

The Mulberry Tree Is Moved

Well, we just had to move it! There were no ifs or and's about it. A mulberry tree or any other kind of a tree can not sit on top of a house or near one of Pete's (and ours) ills.

Shortly after writing last week's column I heard a shout and rushed out to see what had happened. There stood Pete glaring down at one of our mulberry trees. If looks would have killed it, it would be dead now instead of removed to a safer spot.

We should have a blueprint of where I can set stuff out. If it's bigger than an iris (which every one knows has a shallow root system) then Pete complains that it is hard on the yard life. And that means that there is not much space to plant anything. The leads from the house in 3 directions.

I have looked with longing at other folks' weeping willow trees. I will have to be content with looking. If there is anything my spouse likes to know what a willow tree I would like to know what it is. I had a wee one years ago and it created more trouble than anything I have tried to get out. He says they have searching root systems which seek every available source of water... especially tile.

Tilling is wonderful! There is no doubt about it. It has made our other farm into a delight to work. Last fall completed this farm too which has been our dream for years. It meant getting into the fields earlier this spring. They got 21 acres of oats in ahead of the rains. How different it has been some of the other years. Pete pacing from window to window wondering if it were going to stop... if and when... and he wished it would so he could get the oats in.

The birds are very much with us adding to our enjoyment of working outside. It is hard to come in once I get out. I put the teakles on this that would call me in. Then I got to pecking around the yard among the asparagus and rhubarb roots and things, and I forgot the chicken I was going to kill until I looked up and saw the steaming windows. I ran for the house wondering what I would do if my head were not fastened on.

We separated the young chicks putting half into each brooder. What a job. They already are the fussy kind, scared of their own shadow. So now they really are in a dither. Never saw such jumpy chickens.

Taking care of over 800 chickens, young and old, in 3 different coops makes parts of my day planned out for me. The children help but still you know where you can find us at least 3 times during the day.

I have been giving the egg-cleaning business some thought. Have been comparing it to moving the yard. It doesn't seem like much sense to have an expensive creation to help on a task that occurs only during 5 months of the year. But for something that we do every day in the year we still do it the old way. I believe an egg-washing outfit would be more sensible from the point of view of hours used.

I do get something good from that egg routine though. In this whirly world in which we live, where it seems that some weeks spin faster and faster, I do find a certain peace and solitude hard to find in a busy day. All by myself I think and have time to go over in my mind many things that this aloneness allows. Maybe it is the smooth perfection of such symmetrical objects which require no exertion actually. Just pick them each one like the one before and your thoughts flow on smooth and easy-like.

We have turned the egglines into some pleasant times too. We have read several books this past fall and winter. One reads while 2 do eggs.

This time of year is not so good in a dark basement though. Too many other things call from the outside. The cardinals are back at nest making in the rose rambler at the end of the front porch. There is a nest of new kittens in the hay mow. The 4-11 calves require lots of attention and loving. Swinging, the hammock, softball, bicycling, flower- ing, shooting—being alive in spring is pretty wonderful!

Both Exercise and Dieting Are Required by Old Folks

How can older folks get enough of the nutrients they need for good health without gaining weight?

Easy-to-use diet patterns would be one way to help keep calorie intake low, yet emphasize milk, foods rich in vitamin C and other nutrients.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne March left for Port Knox last Tuesday evening, where Mr. March will be stationed.

"protective" foods which are often neglected in many older people's diets.

This is one of the conclusions drawn from findings of research being done by Michigan State university experiment station and other state experiment stations.

Researchers found that from one-fourth to one-half of the people in the studies were overweight, but that on the average, calorie intakes were lower than they should be. This puzzling situation might be explained by the lack of physical exercise and by the use of modern labor-saving equipment.

The studies also revealed evidence of calcium-low diets in older people, which could be corrected by increased milk drinking. Non-fat dry milk is an example of a food high in calcium and low in calories. This is the type of product that older people need to consider when planning their meals.

Vitamin C also was found to be lacking in older persons' diets, especially at low incomes. A relationship between low vitamin C intake and poor conditions in teeth and gums was disclosed in the studies. Frozen and dried citrus concentrates, now available on the market, may help to clean up the low vitamin C intake problem by providing readily accessible sources of vitamin C year-round.

In general, the studies proved that older people need to include more milk, vitamin-rich fruits and more vegetables in their diets if they want to make their longer lives more useful and productive.

NOT SO LONG AGO...

It doesn't seem so long since she was a little girl herself, picking out a card for her mother on Mother's Day. Yet this morning there was a card at the breakfast table, reading, "To Mommy, with love..."

On this day, she feels a special meaning as she goes to church with her little girl's white-gloved hand clasped tightly in hers. As they kneel in prayer together a wave of tenderness comes over her, and as she looks at the small figure by her side she at once feels grateful to God for making her a mother, and awed by the responsibility which is hers.

She prays God to endow her with the qualities all mothers need: common sense, a touch of humor, tenderness, wisdom, the capacity for comfort, a large measure of courage, quick laughter, and just a dash of sternness. And she is deeply thankful that in this, the most important task of her life, she has her Faith and her Church to guide her.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible, daily.

Delinquency Brought Home

On Saturday a man came to the Ingham County News to report conditions on a stretch of road near Stockbridge. He was appalled at the physical surroundings in which families lived. He called conditions perilous to public health and morals. He asked why the county health department and the Stockbridge township zoning board didn't force a cleanup.

After reciting the physical danger to people living under such conditions, he moralized that boys and girls brought up in such environment are predisposed to do wrong. They are so far underprivileged that no comparison can or should be made with youngsters in good homes, the visitor insisted.

It sounded reasonable. It was almost convincing, this proposition that boys and girls reared in such an environment feel rejected and express that rejection and resultant rebellion by vandalism and crime.

Shortly another man came to the office, to report that officers had rounded up 7 boys charged with stripping cars and taking items from stores. But these boys were all from the right side of the tracks. They came from above-standard homes. All of them have parents with high ideals, willing and anxious to give more than their sons required. Over-privileged, not underprivileged, were these 7 boys. None of them ever had need to feel rejected. In school athletics, in school music, in the Scout programs, even in Sunday schools, many of these boys are leaders.

Well, what's the answer? What's the use of taking up this space to moralize without reaching a solution?

The answer is, there is no one solution, no easy solution. Bad environment is perilous, yet there's no reason to believe that housing makes such a difference after all. It's what is within the walls of a house that counts most, what is within the minds and hearts of boys and girls. Sunday schools, recreation programs, school athletics, musical training and Scout programs have value, but offer no assurance that any of them alone or all of them together can be relied upon to shape high character.

While there is danger in not giving children enough advantages there remains the danger of giving too many—more than some youngsters have been disciplined to handle. Maybe that's the answer right there. All of us have been too soft upon disciplining ourselves and upon disciplining our children. We have let the public school teachers, the organization leaders and the Sunday school teachers take responsibilities that we should have exercised ourselves.

Serious as this situation at Mason has been revealed, there is no reason for any parent or any person, for that matter, to point fingers at certain boys. Because all of us have been to blame. We have done the easy thing, organizing some group, hiring men and women or engaging them as volunteers to do what only parents should do—that's implanting discipline, the kind that will safeguard a boy and girl all through life.

Neither should any of us feel that what has happened has doomed any of the boys involved. They are all bright and intelligent. They realize the immensity of their mistakes and they are all smart enough and young enough to change their ways. They and their parents need sympathy and encouragement as they have never needed it before. So let's lay off pointing fingers at the boys who were caught. Let us resolve as parents to give our youngsters what no other individual or group can supply—the discipline that will guard them against wrongdoing.

All of us now know as never before that what's listed as juvenile delinquency isn't always something that happens somewhere else. It not only can happen here. It has happened. And what we do about it will affect every boy and girl in this community.

Revelations of the past week have brought sorrow and heartache to many homes. With the revelations should go the conviction that too often we have given the stones of organized programs when our children needed the bread of family discipline. With the revelations should go the determination on the part of all of us to regard discipline in school and school activities and even the youth organizations as the most essential lesson to be taught.

The Chips Are Down
The day of decision on a community hospital is here. We've been talking about hospital needs for 15 years, seriously considering the needs for more than 10 years.

Now the time has come to decide how much we can give, how much we should give.

Some people have gasped a little at the $500,000 required for the hospital. It's a big sum, yet 3 churches have been built in the last 5 years by groups comparatively small in number. Those buildings have been or are being paid for because the burden has been shared evenly. People have given according to their ability. They have made or will make their payments over a stated period, paying as they earn.

This community has committed itself to build a hospital, to furnish hospital service to a growing area. There can be no turning back now. The chips are down. The campaign to raise funds is under way. All of us should support it.

'Wolf Cry' Is Harmful
Seldom does a week go by nowadays that radio and TV announcers prodded by civil defense officials don't saturate the airwaves with tornado warnings. Yet, it is seldom that tornado-type clouds are actually observed and infrequently does a tornado actually strike.

This isn't to say that folks shouldn't be warned when a tornado is on the war path. On the contrary, it would seem like better civil defense for the cry of wolf to be reserved for very special occasions—just before a tornado carves its way to earth.

It seems that there is little anyone, even civil defense experts, can do about changing the course of a tornado. Civil defense can serve a purpose if it notifies people of probable tornadoes. But the constant warnings of cloud formations about which little can be done is beginning to fall on deaf ears. The repetitious wail of tornado possibilities has resulted in a blasé attitude of those whom civil defense officials are supposedly trying to protect.

Tornado alerts should be issued only after their presence seems more than a possibility. Tornadoes should be probabilities before people should be urged to crouch in their basements. Otherwise when the next tornado does strike, a lot of folks may be laughing it off on their porches.

Oligarchism Now Walks
Ten years ago when Michigan voters were duped by a few politicians and metropolitan newspapers into voting for a constitutional change giving legislators the right to set their own salaries, oligarchism in Michigan began to creep. Session after session, legislators have raised or attempted to raise their salaries.

At the present session oligarchism (the rule of the many by the few) no longer creeps. It is on its feet. Now the legislators not only are after more pay, they are after pensions and they have dared to again propose a scheme to keep them in office long enough to qualify for the Michigan has enacted a law to remove some of the onus from a child of unmarried parents. But the new law is making it more onerous for the mother and will likely give a good word a bad name.

Up to now when an unwed mother wanted to have the man in the case support the child and he refused she started quasi-criminal action, naming the man in a bastardy suit. Her name did not appear in the title of the case. She was a complaining witness and people had to go to court to learn who was suing the man.

Under the new law the nasty word has been eliminated. The action is called paternity instead of bastardy, and it has been taken from the criminal calendar and placed on the civil calendar. But the prosecutor still prosecutes the case. However, the woman loses her anonymity, because the suit is started in her name—Mary Roe vs. John Doe for the support of Junior Doe.

Watch this word "paternity." It will soon take on the connotation of evil. Perhaps the word it replaces in Michigan law started out innocently. It might even have been an endearing expression.

Juvenile has kept such bad company with delinquent that now when a child is spoken of as a juvenile hearers wait for the next word, delinquent.

I had planned to devote Saturday morning to some outdoor chores, but Friday night's rain forced abandonment. So I coaxed my wife and daughter to take a journey with me to see some things we had been talking about. Has the work started on the Leslie-Jackson stretch of new US-127? I wonder if we could find where the meridian of Michigan and the baseline intertwine.

What's left of the Harker hotel at Pleasant lake? Have they finished the dam and built the new beach at Portage lake? How are the muck farmers standing the rains? What does Shepper road look like on the south end?

We got the answers to all those questions and some besides.

There has been little work done on new 127 that we could see. There's nothing of value left of the Harker hotel.

While he kept his grandson hard at work lifting big stones out of the ground and lugging them to a stone boat, Ward Vicary told us how to reach the intersection of Michigan's baseline and principal meridian. We parked the car on Meridian road, a half mile south of Vicary road, and then made our way west through fields, swamp and woods a half-mile. We might have missed the meeting place of the 2 lines then had we not heard scraping and flapping overhead. We looked up to discover that the insulation on the meridian line had frayed and was being whipped about by the wind. In fact, it was intertwined with the baseline.

At Portage lake we found that state workers have dragged the beach a city block up onto shore to get ready for 3 more feet of water. We followed Seymour road down to the conservation earthworks designed to bring Big Portage back somewhere near the level of 40 years ago.

The dam looks as though it will hold. Enroute we passed through a crowd of 50 birdwatchers from Jackson watching birds in the Portage swamps. In a clump of trees nearby we saw 50 birds watching the watchers.

There's no need for me to plant radishes. We stopped at the Dixon radish ranch where 20 acres of radishes are above ground and above water and another 20 acres will be going in as soon as the rains cease. Muck farmers were not overjoyed at the fifth day of rain in a row.

About Shepper road? I made a flock of mental notes about the environmental risk being run by herding so many people in such shacks, and wondering how much onions would have to sell for to compensate for running the risk. Upon arrival home the notes were discarded on the proof which had developed here, a development proving environment is not necessarily the chief factor in youthful behavior.

Mason high school's baseball team walloped Grand Ledge 17 to 3. Fred Slisly had a big day for Mason with a double and a pair of singles.

All 26 students in the Ingham county normal are to receive teaching certificates this year, and all have signed contracts to teach in rural schools, reported Fred E. Searl, county school commissioner.

The Henderson Stock Co. is playing at the Pastime this week. Judge L. B. McArthur informed supervisors that increasing demands for mothers' pensions will send the pension bill to at least $60,000 this year. There are now 168 mothers on the pension list. There are 436 children involved. Governor Fred W. Green vetoed the bill which would have established the whipping post for all men convicted of armed robbery.

What Will Farmers Get This Time?

By CARL COLLIN

The rash of reports out of Washington concerning new proposals for farm programs indicates the administration is concerned about the way agriculture is heading. The administration wants price supports from zero to 100% of parity for the "basic" crops the same as for feed grains, soybeans and others. Actually, the reason is rather plain. When current surpluses are gone, or even cut down sharply, both acreage allotments and price supports will increase according to formulas in the present law. Both Secretary Benson and the president say this will stimulate overproduction and bring back surpluses. Benson insists prices must come down to move crops to market, not storage.

The whole deal is loaded with dynamite, politically. A number of GOP senators and congressmen for wheat since 1946 when farm production and living costs were much lower than today.

A USDA report indicates the cost-price squeeze on the nation's farmers may tighten some in 1957. Economists, basing their opinions on trends in the first quarter of this year, figure that farm output will be down, demand will be as strong as ever, farm prices will be a little higher, costs will be up and farm income will be up a little bit.

Prices received by farmers for their products in the first quarter of 1957 averaged 4% higher than a year earlier. And economists forecast no significant change in the coming months. Prices may average a little above 1956. But prices paid by farmers for farm living, taxes, wages, production consumers the green shade is only skin deep.

The U.S. gave and lent foreign countries nearly $5 billion last year. That's 8% more than in 1955. Of the nearly $5 billion, about $2.7 went for military aid. Farm surplus sales and giveaways abroad made up about half of the non-military aid sent overseas. Most of this—$1.1 billion—went abroad in return for foreign currency and another $300 million was given through various relief programs.

Most parts of the country now have had lots of moisture within the last few weeks. But there are some spots still very deficient. These include parts of western Texas, most of New Mexico, sections of southeastern Colorado, and a few counties in northeastern Montana and northwestern North Dakota.

miscianity — Another hot dog story: Last year more than 72 million hot dogs were consumed in this country. That's an average of 42 per person. Linked end to end the total consumed would string out more than 625,431 miles, a chain of franks long enough to stretch to the moon and back, with enough left over to encircle the earth 5 times. . . . There may be a shortage of castor oil this year. We produce about 11 hundred tons a year, but our needs amount to around 59 thousand tons. Machinery lubrication requires great quantities. Some South American and European countries are starting to use castor oil to make a nylon type synthetic fibre. . . . Ten years ago 80% of the inedible tallow and grease produced in this country was used in making soap. Now the figure is 30%. Detergents represent two-thirds of all household soaps used. . . . One reason for the surplus of animal tallow is that 90% of all steers born in the U.S. now have manerials other than leather in them.

High Yields Of Potatoes Are Possible

A 400-bushel per acre potato yield is no problem on a good upland soil if a grower will follow practices that other growers have shown to be successful.

According to Denny L. Clanan, Michigan State University's farm crops department, growing potatoes is almost as simple as baking a cake—all you need to do is follow a recipe.

And, Clanan has a recipe proven by research and sworn to by growers.

The recipe concocted by Clanan should have started last summer—can still be started this coming summer for potato fields scheduled for next year's planting.

With this year's crop, however, growers will help themselves by selecting certified varieties of seed—Russet Rural, Sebago, Onaway, or for some Upper Peninsula areas, the Russet Burbank. If scab is no problem then the Katahdin variety can be planted.

Use commercial fertilizer according to soil test results. If soil is not tested, then place 800 lb of 5-20-20 on each acre.

If clover, or alfalfa, was not included in the rotation then also put on a side dressing of from 125 to 150 lb of ammonium nitrate per acre during the pre-bud stage.

Farmers can plant by calendar or by soil temperature. If it is to be by calendar, then plant from May 20 to 25, if by soil temperature, plant when soil is 45 degrees at seed bed level.

Green sprouting speeds up emergency. Warm up seed in storage, 10 to 14 days before planting. The short sturdy sprouts plant well, Clanan says.

Recommended planting method is to plant seed pieces deep in the soil—about four inches deep—then cover shallow with 1 1/2 to 2 inches of soil.

There are many more points to Clanan's recipe for growing 400 bushels of potatoes per acre and for handling the crop all the way to storage. And, his recipe is available by writing to him at farm crops department, Michigan State University.

Holstein Group Celebrates

Nine members of The Holstein-Friesian association of America have been elected by their fellow members in Michigan to represent them at the organization's 72nd Annual Convention at Indianapolis, June 4-5. They are Robin Carr, Ploverville; Herb Miller and C. B. Smith, Williams; Jack R. Budd, Belleville; Martin D. Buth, Comstock Park; Everett R. Miller, Rives Junction; George E. Pardonne, Corunna; Charles E. Fleg, Morenci; and George Robb, Ploverville.

Michigan delegates will join with others from all 48 states in discussing the business, formulating the policies and electing officers of the national association—the world's largest dairy cattle registry organization with a total membership of more than 47,000.

2, 4-D Chemical Kills Crabgrass

First flowers on forsythia means more than "spring is here."

These harbingers of spring are signs you can follow for early spring treatment of lawns for crabgrass control.

Fred Widmoyer, extension horticulturist at Michigan State, recommends a treatment with 2,4-D at this time. Use about one tablespoon of 2,4-D ester per 1,000 square feet. Dissolve the 2,4-D in about a gallon of water. Repeat the treatment in 4 to 6 weeks.

Other materials that also do a satisfactory control job include: Sesone or Crab Herbicide and Alanap-1. With these materials, at 4 to 6 week intervals. First application should be made at the first flowers-on-forsythia stage.

Widmoyer also lists materials that may be used when crabgrass is about 2 inches high. Scutyl and Tat-C-Leel can be applied at that time and repeated 3 times at 7-day intervals. Cyanate can be applied on a one-treatment basis and sodium arsenate on a 2-treatment schedule, 7 days apart. Follow manufacturers' directions for preparing solutions.

Chlordane and highly refined oil such as kerosene may be used in combination treatment, again when crabgrass is 2 inches high. Recommended rate is one gallon per 1,000 square feet for one treatment. Use one-half pint of 72 per cent chlordane concentrate per gallon of kerosene.

Pastures Still Lack Full Value

There's no best pasture system for all farms, but there is a best one for every farm, says M. H. Avery, county agricultural agent.

Pasture is one of the most important feeds the dairyman has, but it is one of the most neglected, according to C. R. Hoglund, Michigan State university farm economist.

A Michigan study showed that less than 20% of cropland pastures rated excellent, although about 50% of the meadows harvested for grass silage and hay rated excellent.

Improved use of fertilizer and different grazing systems are 2 methods that can be used to improve the productivity of pastures.

The harvesting and storing of more hay silage for mid-summer feeding will boost pasture yields. Strip grazing, a new pasture system in Michigan, can increase carrying capacity of pastures by 15 to 20 per cent, if well managed, Avery said.

Chopping green grass every day requires the most investment and labor of any system, but can increase the carrying capacity of the pasture land from 25 to 35%.

Making silage and feeding it in the summer is about halfway between strip grazing and green feeding, both in time and money invested and in increased production per acre, Avery pointed out.

Country & Town

By Jim Brown

That cute baby in last week's Country & Town is the way Frank Wythe looked back in Grand Ledge 65 years ago. He was 3. Mrs. Ellsworth Brown was the first to identify Frank and she received a free Ingham County News subscription for her efforts.

"Take a look at your daughter," said Police Chief Harry Chandler's pretty wife.

Clara Mae, our neighbor Mrs. Gerald Postichal and my wife were haggling over the sale of our chest of drawers. The bid had gone to $5 when Clara Mae had happened to look out the window. There was our Amy, naked as a robin with one leg poised as if to step into the birdbath. As dear wife went screaming down to her child, the commotion so rattled little Amy that she and the birdbath went crashing amid mud, roses and broken pottery.

Bill Thorburn's head is rounded just right and his well-molded chin carries just the right amount of the right textured whiskers. That's why Bob Hall, Mason's answer to Antoni of New York, selected Bill for use at the state barbering examination in Detroit Monday. Bill sat right still while Bob gave him the smoothest shave he'd ever had. And with knowing hands and modern machinery, Bob amazed his instructors by modeling Bill's curls into a naughty Detroit cut. The men went to Detroit Sunday night and put up at one of the big hotels in order to be ready for the examination Monday. Bill figures the trip, the hotel and meals and the day away from work was a fair exchange for his free haircut.

Bob has joined the C & S barbershop where he is duplicating Bill's haircut for $1.25 a head. That's mass production for you.

No wonder our new puppy is so sweet. He ate every last bloomin' tulip in our garden Sunday.

Mason Kiwanians have offered regrets for the slow service at the Thursday night pancake supper. The response to the hospital benefit supper was more than Kiwanians anticipated. Even though sausage was being fried at 3 in the afternoon and though pancakes were mass-produced 3 dozen at a crack, the demand outstripped the supply. Next time the menu will probably be one that will lend itself to big crowds, according to the flapjack-flippers who worked over hot stoves for sweet charity.

Time Spent in Planning Pays Off in Gardening

Time spent in planning a home garden will pay off in greater enjoyment in caring for the garden as well as higher production of vegetables and fruits.

Haphazard gardening leads to discouragement on the part of the gardener and can make the garden's products costly, pointed out Fred Widmoyer, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State.

Widmoyer said the gardener shouldn't set foot in the garden until he has a plan that includes types of vegetables to be planted, how much space is to be devoted to each vegetable, where each planting will be located and a timetable for planting each vegetable.

This may sound like gardening should be made a business rather than leisure time activity, admits Ted Widmoyer. But planning is worthwhile whether the garden is merely a hobby or it is an activity to provide substantial amount of food for the family, he said.

Here are some other tips in planning the home garden:

Keep in mind that your family likes to eat the food of your family.

Decide how much food you want for processing (canning or freezing) and how much you'll want for fresh use.

Be sure you can get varieties that will grow well under weather conditions in your area. There's quite a difference between southern and northern Michigan in weather conditions and length of growing season.

Start plantings at one end of the garden and progress toward the other end. This eliminates broken rows and makes cultivation and spraying simpler. Perennial plants such as rhubarb and asparagus should be placed at one end where they will not interfere with cultivation or harvest of

State Grange Opposes Bill Providing Market Control

There is no unanimity over the need or the wisdom of milk marketing controls by the legislature.

While some farm groups are for the controls, others are opposed. The Michigan State Grange is lined up in opposition.

William J. Brake, master of the Grange, appeared at a hearing called on the bill known as the Fair Share marketing control measure. The Grange opposed state milk marketing control, and in this bill opposed the omission of producer group's such as Michigan Milk Producers association from any voice in state milk control.

"The National Grange," Brake added, "is proposing a nationwide, self-help program for the dairy farmers, which, it is hoped, will raise the price of milk to producers. Even this, however, should be considered as more of an emergency type of program, designed to assist farmers in this period of transition, rather than a permanently necessary program."

Paper mills in Michigan use 250 tons of water to produce one ton of sulphite wood pulp.

Secretary has announced on 1958 wheat crop price supports. Senator Young (R, N.D.) says that several additional seats will be lost to the GOP as a result of the 22c reduction in wheat price supports next year. Young pointed out that the new rate of $1.78 a bushel is 46c below the record high of $2.24 in 1954. The 1958 figure is the lowest support price

Farm field work here in Michigan was running about 10 days later than normal at the middle of last week. Wet weather which has held up seeding of oats all over the country may be responsible for a considerable cut in the acreage this year. Farmers getting their oats in late may find that it will really pay off to give them a heavy slug of fertilizer to boost their growth while there's plenty of moisture in the soil.

INCREASING farming efficiency by the installation of a complete tile drainage system on the Gerald Eifert farm on Willoughby road in Alameda township was the result of this operation. Russell Dowling, drainage contractor, is controlling the depth of the trench by sighting over the targets. The man in the trench is putting the tile in place. And Eifert, with shovel, is blinding the tile with loose topsoil. This crew can install as much as 20 rods a day.

Eifert is aiming for a 100-bushel plus corn crop, and he realized the lack of adequate drainage on his fertile, heavy soil was the limiting factor. He expects increased crop yields will pay for the 3 1/2 miles of tile, costing approximately $120 per acre, in 5 years.

The tile system was laid out by an engineer of the soil conservation service as part of a complete soil and water conservation plan. The tile are being installed under the ACP program. (Photo by Mel Stroud)

Good Stands of Corn Depends a Lot On Placement of Fertilizer in Row

Getting a good stand of corn depends a lot on where you put the fertilizer in the row.

With today's high strength fertilizers and high planting speeds, machinery that did a good job 10 years ago will no longer give best results, according to R. L. Cook, head of the soil science department at Michigan State University.

Proper fertilizer placement as well as improper placement is illustrated in this group of pictures.

Picture 1—Placement of fertilizer with a "split boot" type of applicator common on corn planters. The fertilizer is above the corn and to the side but it is hardly effective in promoting the early growth. Roots grown down, not up.

Picture 2—Fast planting speeds often put the fertilizer with the seed and the seed will not germinate. At worst, there will be no stand of corn; at best, only a partial stand. Yields are often cut by a third or more because fertilizer came in contact with the seed.

Picture 3—Fertilizer is placed directly below the seed, put there with a new type applicator. The first root of corn grows through the fertilizer but when the whole root system is in the fertilizer, growth is slowed and the corn is delayed. Perhaps the yield is reduced.

Picture 4—The best placement of fertilizer for corn when it is put in the row at planting time—about 2 inches to the side and 2 inches below the seed. Here the fertilizer is in the path of part of the corn roots. The corn gets the nutrients it needs and gets water, too.

When soil moisture is adequate, as in the case when planting follows immediately after plowing (minimum tillage, corn seeds should be planted no deeper than one inch, according to Cook. The soil should be pressed firmly on the seed.

Machinery is on the market that will place the fertilizer to the side and below the seed. You can easily pay for the new attachments for your corn planter through increased yields the first year, said Cook.

How Did You Do It?

M. H. Avery and Ken Brown, county agricultural agents, want reports from farmers in the county who seeded rye or other crops in their corn at or during the last cultivation in 1956 and reports of those who seeded by airplane later in the season.

Because 1956 was an exceptionally dry season in the fall for cover crops to get a start, said they want to learn of fields which did make a good growth so that reports may be made on the best method to use.

At the present time when many farmers are planting corn on corn ground for 2, 3 or more years it is important that a cover crop be grown to plow down and to protect the soil during the winter months, they explained.

Good Seed Is Key to Crop Profits

Are you giving good seed the emphasis it deserves in crop production?

Many farmers take seed for granted, yet it is one of the main factors in profitable crop production, according to S. C. Hildebrand, farm crops specialist at Michigan State University.

Where does seed fit into the crop picture? First, the seed must germinate, giving strong and healthy sprouts. Uniform seed size allows a better distribution of seed through the planter and results in a more uniform stand. If seed used for planting contains viable weed seeds resulting competition may cause reduction in yield and difficulty in harvesting. If diseased seed is planted, the plants frequently show disease symptoms.

All characteristics of a given variety are carried within the seed. Variety has much to do with yield, maturity, lodging resistance, disease resistance, winter hardiness and other grain quality factors. Variety plays a large part in crop production.

The peak in yield and quality of the harvested crop may be reached only by planting pure seed of the best varieties. For instance, if seed of a late variety of soybeans or field beans comes mixed with seed of any early variety, not all of the plants will mature at the same time. This could mean a delay in harvesting the early beans until the later beans were mature and a possible loss by excess shattering of the early beans. If the early beans were harvested when the later beans were green, the green beans would cause trouble in harvesting, storage—a resultant loss of both quality and yield.

The use of high quality seed is a way of getting the most from your crops, according to Hildebrand. In the production of certified, emphasis is placed on purity for variety. The certified seed producer plants foundation seed, an unbiased field inspection is made of the growing crop, and a careful inspection is made of the cleaned seed to accomplish purity of variety. A mixture of seed of different varieties can sometimes be recognized in the seed itself. But more often, such mixtures can only be determined by inspecting the growing crop, pointed out Hildebrand.

Good seed is the best your money can buy, while poor seed is expensive at any cost, he concludes.

Farm-City Week

The annual farm-city week observation has been set for Nov. 22-28. Dr. Paul A. Miller, East Lansing, director of the Michigan cooperative extension service, has been elected to serve again as chairman of the group.

Bollivia's seat of government, La Paz, is the world's highest capital, the National Geographic Society says. The city is situated in a sheltered valley at 11,900 feet. Its ski run starts down from a height of more than 3 miles.

Committees Make Long-Range Plans For Cooperative Extension Program

Nine committees in Ingham county have been meeting during the winter months to lay out long range plans for the cooperative extension service program of the county for the next 10 years or more. The 9 main problems being considered by these groups are:

The broad program of land use planning as it relates to zoning needs and changes; urbanization of many areas of the county; need for increased recreational areas and facilities and water.

The school problems as they relate to lay people of the county and what they may do to assist in helping the county school board to correct these problems.

The tax situation as to possible revisions, method of assessing and new approaches to the tax situation.

Recreation and leisure time activities for youth and adult. In this area a study was made of the recreation facilities available at the present time and what possibilities there were for extending these to more of the rural area and what part local people might have in helping develop this program. Included were activities for the older retired and retiring people.

Community problems was another area being studied with the urbanization of a number of the townships in the county and its extension further into other townships. Many community problems have come up which were not important in earlier years. Under this program the community council was given special attention. Education for youth and adults in informal types of education programs were also studied. Marketing of agricultural products of the county was given attention by another committee as to what changes need to be made and what part local people might have in implementing these changes.

The health and safety programs were also studied. The extension program in previous years has done considerable in this area, but wants to give it more attention. Family living is a broad area which has been given attention from a home economics standpoint and which will be given added emphasis.

All of these 9 subjects have been studied with resource people who have had special training in this field or who have been working in this field either in Lansing or at Michigan State University. Findings and recommendations of these committees will be put together and made available for agricultural groups such as Farm Bureau and Grange to discuss at their meetings this summer or early fall before being put in a form to add to the cooperative extension program.

Since most of the groups have not touched specifically on many of the agricultural commodities projects in the county, Ken Brown and M. H. Avery will meet with a group of key farmers in the county Thursday evening, May 9, at the court house to study long range subjects which need special attention in Ingham county as far as dairy, livestock, crops, soils and farm management program are concerned. Any farm people who are not invited to this meeting may attend and take their suggestions and recommendations with them.

The extension agents in the county said that if the cooperative extension service is to serve agriculture and the people of the county as they should be served, it is important that the people of the county assist in laying out this long-range program so that it will meet the needs of the greatest number of people.

Direct Approach Used on Tourists

By ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

An aggressive policy of stimulating Michigan's tourist business will get underway July 1.

The new program, an active plan of "going to the people," will replace the present system of state-operated information offices in Detroit and Chicago, said Robert J. Furlong, of the Michigan Tourist Council.

"Vacation salesmen" are key figures in the program. Plans call for hiring 2 men to actively sell the idea of Michigan vacations. Members of industry, labor groups, transportation and travel agencies, and all others who can enjoy or sell the state's tourist advantages are prime prospects. "The new approach will not cost Michigan taxpayers additional money. Funds saved from the closing of the Detroit and Chicago offices will cover costs of the new plan."

"Instead of waiting for potential tourists to come to us, we will go to them," Furlong commented. "Experience has shown that the Chicago and Detroit offices don't reach all the people we consider as prospects. Because of many limitations of our present operation, many persons who take yearly vacations never hear about the advantages of a Michigan outing."

"For example the large number of steel and gas company workers around Gary, Ind. are not exposed to our sales ideas. But their unions or personnel offices have vacation committees that recommend and prepare plans for members. With our proposed system we can go directly to these people and add many new prospects."

The "personal touch" is expected to play an important role in the program. In addition to going out to the potential tourist, the new vacation salesmen will contact radio and TV stations and resort editors throughout the state, promoting the use of Michigan films and material on state-wide tourist travel. Department stores with trip-planning facilities and travel agencies will also receive individual visits.

"We are convinced," said Furlong, "that a large part of our tourist potential is made up of people living in Michigan who want to visit other parts of our state."

Tourist officials have high hopes that the new plans will increase both the numbers of tourists and the length of Michigan's vacation season.

Color comes to the voting booth. Ballots of many colors will adorn Michigan polls next year if final approval is given a house bill for changes in the state election code.

Ballots will be printed in a different color for each type of election. The house-approved color system lists white ballots for partisan races; blue for non-partisan candidates; red ones for constitutional amendments and other state-wide issues; green for county proposals; buff ballots for local propositions.

Purpose of the varied colors is to provide uniformity and make the ballots easier to count, said Rep. Clarence Meggison (R-Charlevoix).

Retaining of jobless workers is the brightest hope for easing Michigan's unemployment situation, said Director Max Horton of the state employment security commission.

Some 45 per cent of the state's jobless have only an elementary education, Horton told a house labor committee. Studies show that approximately three-fourths have not completed high school.

Bills proposing a vocational training program and a counseling service recommended by Horton are under consideration by the legislature.

The money to finance these programs, $550,000, would come from funds the federal government collected in taxes from Michigan for unemployment compensation. This money, far in excess of actual administrative costs, is being returned to the state.

Actual construction of the Mackinac bridge was resumed last week after a winter of preparation.

First order of business will be to link the peninsula with the 2 continuous truss spans that will eventually support the 48-foot roadway from the shore to the cable towers that will hold the suspension part of the bridge.

Summer visitors will see the 5-mile bridge completely spanning the water between St. Ignace and Mackinaw City.

But it will be November before residents, tourists and hunters will be able to make a 10-minute car trip across the bridge. Until then, the majestic sight of the span's construction will lure many visitors.
