

Down by the Sycamore Gains National Award

At the meeting of the National Editorial association in Detroit Wednesday night the Ingham County News column, "Down by the Sycamore," was announced as first place winner.

The first place award was in the category of best columns on variety of topics, published during 1957.

The Ozark (Arkansas) Spectator's "The Last Straw," by Elizabeth Burrow, was acclaimed the winner in the category of best columns on one topic. The "Tuesdays Herald's" "Long and Short of It" by Tom Riordan, received honorable mention in that class.

In competition for best columns on variety of topics, the Albany (Georgia) Journal's "Over the Coffee Cup," by Thad Gibson, placed second; and Paul Chandler's column, "The Mail Attitude," in the Plymouth (Michigan) Mail placed third.

Chandler won a first place with best news story in his Redford Observer and an honorable mention in excellence in typography (Plymouth Mail). He publishes the Observer, the Mail and the Livonian.

The Oxford (Michigan) Leader won an honorable mention in excellence of typography among weeklies under 2,000 circulation. The Frankentum News and Birmingham Eccentric, both of Michigan, won top prizes in best use of photographs, the Frankentum paper taking first place for newspapers under 2,000 circulation and the Birmingham paper winning first in the big circulation field.

The Lapeer County Press gained honorable mention in general excellence and in service to agriculture among newspapers of more than 6,000 circulation.

"Down by the Sycamore" is written by Nelson Brown. He began writing it in 1936.

Last year the Ingham County News won first place in the best editorial class and an honorable mention in general excellence.

Crematory for Dead Dogs Will Boost License Fees

Owners of live dogs will have to pay more for dead ones. The county is going to switch from burial of dogs to cremation. The change will be reflected in higher license fees for dogs, Supervisor Charles S. Woods of Ingham indicated Tuesday. He is chairman of the livestock committee of the board of supervisors.

License fees which are now $1 for male and unsexed dogs, if licenses are bought before March 1, and double that after March 1, will probably be doubled again, Supervisor Woods said.

Up until recent years rendering plants took care of animal carcasses at the animal shelter. No longer will rendering companies handle dogs and other small animals. Burial of the carcasses has been made in a public dump but nearby residents are complaining.

Ingham county sends an average of 432 dogs to the death house every month, in addition to cats, rabbits and other animals. The monthly load often exceeds 14,000 lb.

The livestock committee inspected the Kalamazoo animal crematory recently and decided that cremation is the answer to carcass disposal. But the Kalamazoo crematory lacks the capacity required in Ingham.

At the expense of the Ingham County Humane society a manufacturer's representative is coming to Ingham to consult on installation. The cost of the machinery with 3 burners for the incinerator was quoted by Supervisor Woods at $3,200. The price does not include a chimney, estimated at $500, foundations, building, gas supply lines and electric power facilities. The building contemplated is an 18x18 addition to the present structure.

At Kalamazoo dogs are dispatched by an oxygen-exhaustion process. They are placed in a chamber and a device withdraws oxygen. Operators said that death comes without a struggle.

Ingham uses electrocution as a means of dispatch. It is considered humane for its victims but is regarded as hazardous for operators, Supervisor Woods said. Until money is available from higher dog licenses, he said, electrocution will remain as the means of dispatch.

The Ingham County Humane society, the city of Lansing and the county of Ingham jointly operate the animal shelter, located at 1713 Sunset, Lansing.

9 Girl Scouts Pack Luggage

Nine Mason Girl Scouts have their luggage almost packed, ready for the start of their trip to Mexico. They will leave Mason early Friday morning, July 18, bound for Cuernavaca, Mexico.

There were 10 Scouts, but Ruth Schmitter is unable to go. A physical examination revealed a condition that precludes the long journey.

The 9 are Patty Graham, Julie Dart, Ruth Carl, Nancy Barton, Tobey Pearsall, Suzanne Phillips, JoLynne Capps, Mary Clipper and Claudia Selbert. Going along as drivers and counselors are Mrs. Howard Selbert and Mrs. Otis Clipper. The Selbert station wagon and the Clipper family car will provide the transportation.

Jim Dart and Lawrence Barton have made water-tight tarps to cover luggage carriers. Sleeping bags for the 11, along with some of the suitcases, will be carried topside.

On the U. S. end of the trip the Mason Scouts and their counselors will stay in camps. Motels and hotels will be used while away from the main camp in Mexico.

The first stop out of Mason will be at Springfield, Illinois, in the firemen's barracks at the state fair grounds. The next night's stop will be at a Girl Scout lodge in Springfield, Missouri. The third night's halt will be at a lake lodge near Greenville, Texas. The fifth night will be at the border, at a Scout lodge near Laredo.

Staying at camps and lodges will result in savings, Mrs. Selbert said. Some of the facilities will be provided without charge and on others the charge will not exceed 25¢ per person. The girls intend to prepare their own lunches and perhaps some of their other meals when facilities make it possible.

At the cabana at Cuernavaca will be 50 Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from the United States and Mexico.

The route back has not yet been determined, Mrs. Selbert said. There is a possibility that they will travel through a section of the Rocky mountains.

Mason girls worked at many tasks to raise money for their trip. They have been working toward the journey for 3 years.

Some of them worked as waitresses. Others did baby-sitting. Several picked fruit. The troop also staged spaghetti suppers. Several organizations have contributed to the travel fund.

Circuit Jurors Plan for Picnic

All men and women who have ever served on circuit court jury in Ingham will be welcome at the annual jurors picnic at Mason Sunday, July 20, said Floyd Weldon, Mason, president of the association. Their families and friends will also be welcome, he said, along with county officers and supervisors.

The picnic will be in the 4-11 building next to William H. Rayer park.

There will be an informal program with brief talks by circuit judges.

FORTY-FIVE ENERGETIC men swarmed into the 91 acres of cucumbers at Diehlfelds, Dansville, to do the thinning Wednesday. Until last week's rains and this week's warm weather arrived it didn't look as though much thinning would be necessary. But the heat and humidity changed the outlook and indications now point to a normal crop. There are few plantings which even approach the Diehlfeld's 91 acres for size. The Diehls had a fling at cucumbers last year and came back for a lot more this year. (Archey's photo.)

Rains Brighten Prospects For Normal Pickle Crop

Rains just in the nick of time have brought hope for a normal cucumber crop. Until the rains came last week, and the warm weather, the outlook for a profitable pickle season was dim.

Since the rains the vines have made such rapid growth they are almost up to normal.

The labor situation has also encouraged farmers and the H. W. Madison Co. There has been enough native labor willing to work in cucumbers so that Mexican nationals brought in have been kept hoeing and thinning beets.

Americans of Mexican descent, brought to Ingham in former years and leaving the fields for factories, have taken up hoes again. They are hoeing cucumbers. Along with them, reported Ben Weaver of the H. W. Madison Co., are some men of Mexican descent and without previous pickle experience who are willing to work.

Month's Rain Comes in Heap

Water equal to a month's normal rainfall descended over the Fourth of July week end. At Mason the rainfall for the week measured 3.21 inches. Most of it came July 3, 4 and 5.

While the weather interfered with picnics and outings planned for the long week end, most farmers welcomed the rain, although they would have settled for a little less. It came in such a way that most of it soaked in.

County Workers Arrange Picnic

Employees of the county and their families are to have a picnic at Francis park, Lansing, Monday afternoon and evening, July 14.

The program is scheduled to start at 5:30 with a picnic supper at 7:00. Sports and games are on the program, with a long list of prizes put up for winners.

Francis park is along Grand river, west of Moores park.

Court Recesses In Driving Case

Jurors chosen to hear testimony in the case of the people against John S. Kerrey, East Lansing, are having a vacation until Friday, July 18.

The jurors sitting in the case reported at Mason Tuesday morning, not to hear the testimony but to decide when it would be convenient for judge, lawyers and jurors to assemble again to resume the trial.

Kerrey was on trial June 3 when a question of law developed over introduction of testimony on speed and a recess was called to await a ruling of the state supreme court. The high court ruling closed the door to introduction of some of the testimony to be offered by Dr. Gordon Sheehy, Michigan State university professor.

Kerrey was the driver of a car which collided with one driven by Prof. John M. DeHaan of MSU March 10, 1957. Both the professor and his wife were fatally injured. Kerrey is being tried on the charge of negligent homicide resulting from the death of Prof. DeHaan.

Leland W. Carr Jr. is defending Kerrey. Leo Farhat, assistant prosecutor, is handling the case for the people. Judge Sam Street Hughes is conducting the trial.

Council Orders Storm Sewer Job

VanderVeen Drive home owners hope to be out of the mud this fall or for sure by next spring. It will cost them money, though.

Monday night councilmen ordered City Assessor Dean Taylor to prepare a special assessment roll for the $41,000 storm sewer project. When completed the 2 year-around waterholes will disappear from the street.

The sewer, as approved, will hook into an existing storm sewer between Rogers and Steele streets. It will extend east in South street to VanderVeen Drive and about 250 feet south.

Property owners petitioned for the sewer January 8 but no action was taken when City Treasurer Doris Austin pointed out the city did not have any money for its share of the cost.

Crackdown Begins July 28 Mason Licenses Peddlers

Beginning July 28 peddlers will have tough going in Mason. The council adopted a peddler ordinance Monday night.

The ordinance regulates and licenses hawking, peddling and street vending of goods, wares, merchandise, drugs, fruit, vegetables and services within the city.

"We want to know who is selling what so that the city can protect housewives from the army of peddlers swarming into Mason," Councilman Gilson Pearsall said.

"It is not the intention of the city council to penalize local business men and organizations," Councilman Pearsall added. "The ordinance requires licensing but also includes a paragraph which allows the council to waive the license upon request of the applicant."

If a license is necessary the applicant must file a $200 bond. Licenses expire on June 30 each year. Peddlers operating door to door on foot will pay $5 for a license good for a year, $3 for 6 months and $1 for one month or less.

Making door to door sales from a vehicle requires a yearly license fee of $10. After January 1 of each year the license fee will drop to $5.

The ordinance provides that the license be displayed in a conspicuous place on the vehicle or carried by the hawker if he is on foot.

Violation of the hawking ordinance carries a $25 fine plus costs of prosecution or a jail term not to exceed 30 days.

The city council also has the power to revoke any license. City Attorney Lloyd Morris and the police committee worked on the ordinance after studying similar ordinances in other cities.

Ingham Justices of Peace Ask for Probation Officer

Ingham justices of the peace want a county probation officer. The request is now before the judicial committee of the board of supervisors.

If the request meets with approval, the circuit judges will be asked to also make such a request and forward it to the state pardon and parole board. That board will make the appointment.

George J. Hutter, Lansing township justice of the peace, presented the request of the Ingham Justices of the Peace association to the supervisors Tuesday. He said that fees paid by probationers will cover the expense of a probation officer. A clerk and office equipment would also have to be provided, he said.

Although justices now place persons on probation, there is no such provision under the law unless there is a qualified probation officer. Lansing municipal court has a probation officer, Judge Hutter said, but no other magistrate's court in the county does. He estimated that between 450 and 500 persons a year should be put on probation for misdemeanors.

There is little point in putting men on probation for non-support and drunkenness and not checking them, Judge Hutter said. He also told of the difficulties of handling youthful traffic violators without employing a probation officer.

Prefacing his remarks to the supervisors, Judge Hutter said that it was only recently discovered that an approved probation officer must be available to permit justices to use probation.

In the absence of such an officer, he said, the suspended sentence plan is used to force compliance with terms of the sentence.

Trustees Again Elect Thorburn

At their organization meeting Wednesday night of last week trustees re-elected Lyle B. Thorburn as president of the Mason school board. Stanley G. Holmes, who has served as treasurer, was elected secretary. Glen Oesterle was chosen treasurer. The other 2 trustees are W. O. Hall and Clairmont Everett.

Everett was elected to the Mason board of education June 10. Board members are elected to serve for 3 years.

Webberville Tot Suffers Injuries

Eric Jorgenson, year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jorgenson, Webberville, is in a Lansing hospital. He was struck by a car in the driveway of the Jorgenson home, 4765 Moyer road, Wednesday morning.

The youngster had gone from the porch to the driveway. Gordon Leedy, employed on the farm, did not notice the child until it was too late to avoid striking him.

It was at first feared that the boy had a fractured skull. X-rays disclosed no fracture. His right arm was broken and he is being watched for any indications of internal injuries.

Building Program Awaits Decision

Supervisors are awaiting a decision on acquisition of title to the site of Lansing's old city hall before shaping plans for a branch county building there.

The county board has agreed to erect a branch office building on the old city hall site if and when funds become available.

It was reported Tuesday that the county can secure the site by lease or by deed. The city of Lansing has agreed to permit the county to use the property at a fee of $1. Supervisor Joseph Lavey of Lansing, who is also city attorney, told supervisors that Lansing voters may not understand if their approval has to be secured to validate the transfer. Actually the value of the site in Lansing's downtown area is as high as any similar area within the city, he pointed out.

Supervisor Carl G. Card, East Lansing, chairman of the ways and means committee and a member of the steering committee, said that an opinion from the prosecutor's office concerning acquisition of the site must be furnished before the joint committee can proceed.

Council Invests Extra Bond Cash

Mason has so much money that City Treasurer Doris Austin and the council finance committee don't know what to do with it.

All is not as rosy as the oversupply indicates. The money swelling the treasury is bond money and is all spoken for.

Councilmen took action Monday night to invest $163,000 and draw some interest on it until it is needed.

The $163,000 chunk is part of the $185,000 special revenue bond money. As work is completed on the new well, pumphouse, water lines and storage tank the payments will be made from the $185,000.

The same system is in operation on the $390,000 bond money used for the sewage disposal plant construction.

City Engineer Walter Zimmer told the council Monday night that the disposal plant work is 25% completed. He advised city officials to start the paper work necessary in order to collect $89,700 in federal aid. The grant gained approval 2 months ago. Payment is scheduled just as soon as the project is 25% completed and passes federal inspection.

Members of Mason's Chamber of Commerce used its own system for regulating door to door solicitation for several years. The Chamber solicitation committee passed on outside solicitation and issued permits in cases deemed beneficial.

There were no enforcement provisions. The Chamber of Commerce program discouraged many undesirable solicitors from preying on Mason homes and businesses, though.

Other ordinances are on the way.

Monday night councilmen tabled for further study a proposed ordinance to regulate house trailers. Councilman Harry Smith asked for more time to study the ordinance and bring it into line with contemplated changes in the county trailer code and the Lansing trailer regulations.

Changes in the city liquor control code also went back to committee for further study. The present ordinance was passed in 1893. Some of the provisions were forgotten and some aren't looked upon with favor by the present council.

Councilman Pearsall is in charge of the group revising the ordinance.

Leslie Father Ends His Life

Jack Squires, 33, Leslie, killed himself at the home on State road Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. He left a suicide note.

Despondency over marital difficulties stemming from heavy drinking led Squires to ending his life. He was also unemployed.

Mrs. Squires and the 4 children: Jack Jr., 11; Judy, 10; Vickie, 6; and Sandra, 3; had left the husband and father Sunday and were at the home of Mrs. Squires' parents near Onondaga. Divorce was being contemplated.

The suicide victim was a navy veteran. He had lived near Onondaga and Leslie all his life. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philo Squires.

Jack Lohrke of Eaton Rapids found the body of Squires about 8 o'clock. Squires had shot himself in the head with a .22 calibre rifle. Lohrke told officers he had been with Squires Tuesday on a job-hunting expedition and had gone to the house Wednesday to make plans for job-seeking Thursday. Lohrke notified Deputy Sheriff Don Haynes at Leslie.

The officer summoned Coroner Dorwin Hoffmeyer from Lansing. The coroner, after making an investigation, declared that no inquest was necessary, that Squires' death was by his own hand.

Services will be at the Lutich funeral home in Leslie Saturday afternoon at 1:00. Rev. Arthur Warfield of Childs Bible church will officiate.

Prosecutor and Supervisor Debate Meridian Incorporation Procedure

Prosecutor Jack Warren and Supervisor James McClure of Meridian township are at odds over procedure on petitions filed for incorporation of the township as a city. Each questioned the motives of the other in an exchange before the board of supervisors at Mason Tuesday.

Supervisors took the incorporation petitions out of committee and sent them to the desk of the county clerk to remain in a "state of presentment."

Supervisor McClure blamed the prosecutor's office for the situation whereby sponsors of the petitions were not asked to put up costs for conducting an election on incorporation. He declared the information and advice secured from the prosecutor's office was insufficient and inadequate. He also charged Assistant Prosecutor Jerald Keyworth with enlisting in a counter-drive to have Okemos incorporation petitions considered ahead of Meridian petitions.

The prosecutor was in the room when McClure made his references to the prosecutor's staff. Warren charged McClure with loose talk. He also declared that Keyworth had nothing to do with writing opinions relative to Meridian incorporation procedure. He explained that inasmuch as Keyworth is a resident of Meridian township he has every right to engage in township and community affairs.

Warren declared that legal opinions from his office are not written to satisfy the wishes of the supervisor or any other person but are interpretations of the law. He called attention to the fact that the attorney general collaborated in rendering the opinion on Meridian petitions and that the attorney general and McClure are members of the same political party.

Supervisors moved to proceed with other business, thereby shutting off the debate. The Meridian supervisor, however, was given the floor to continue his attack on the prosecutor's office.

Before the argument began, McClure explained that the petitions for incorporating Meridian as a city were not properly before the committee, that they were still in stage of presentment. Filing of petitions for incorporation of Okemos confuses the issue, he said, because Okemos residents now believe they will be given the alternative of voting incorporation either as a township-city or as a city taken out of Meridian township. Only one proposal can be voted on, the supervisor explained.

It was then he claimed that public officials had been derelict in their duties.

"If someone had said, I have erred," weeks ago, this entire matter would have been cleared up," Supervisor McClure stated.

There are about 30 square miles remaining in Meridian township after annexation of the Marble school district to East Lansing. Petitions calling for a vote on incorporation of the rest of the township as a city were filed but no fee was deposited to cover the election cost. The petitions had been filed several weeks before discovery was made that the deposit was required. Then came petitions for the incorporation of Okemos.

As the matter now stands, the township incorporation petitions are being held awaiting a deposit and the Okemos petitions, although before a committee, are not being considered, and may not be until further action is Long service in the United States department of agriculture was recognized Monday afternoon when 2 employees of the FHA were presented with 20-year service pins and certificates. Frank Openlander, personnel director in the state office of the department of agriculture in East Lansing, presented the awards to Harold D. Gates and Eva I. Kelley.

Gates, county supervisor for the FHA, is a native of Ionia county. Before coming to Ingham in 1948 he served in West Branch

Before that she worked in the public service commission and the department of state in Lansing. She is a native of Lansing and received her training at the Cleary business college in Ypsilanti.

Leslie School Voters to Ballot

By Mrs. Clara Strange
Monday, July 14, from 7 a. m. until 8 p. m. at Leslie high school are the time and place for the annual school election of Leslie public schools district.

There will be 2 ballots. One will be to elect a member to the school board. Printed on this one will be the names of the incumbent, Mrs. William (Heloise) Kannawin, seeking re-election, and J. B. Hyatt, who was on the Sewille school board before annexation of that district.

The second ballot will ask for an additional 5 mills levy to repay deficits and take care of increases in expenses for the coming year. This will be on state equalized valuation, county assessed figures. In Ingham county this will be 1.7 more than the county assessed valuation. For people in Leslie this would still be less taxes than they paid with the 5-mill levy last year.

for the Ingham County News

In Detroit Wednesday night another first place award in the National Editorial Association's Better Newspaper contest was presented to the Ingham County News.

Judges liked best the "Down by the Sycamore" column which appears regularly in the Ingham County News. In a national contest they gave the Ingham County News first place.

In the same national contest last year, the Ingham County News won first place on editorials and honorable mention in general excellence.

Editorials and columns are not written to please contest judges. The newspaper is not printed with an idea of winning prizes. The Ingham County News is published to give almost 6,000 subscribers the news of the community, and some views along with it. The Ingham County News is published to give advertisers and buyers a marketplace — the best marketplace this community offers.

Yes, we are pleased to get first place awards in state and national contests — or second and third places and honorable mention, too. Such awards encourage us. But the main goal is serving this community with a newspaper which tells and sells — tells what is going on, tells who has what for sale, tells where to buy, and sells for those who advertise regularly.

Homemakers Conference Speakers Are Announced

About 1,200 Michigan homemakers will soon put aside their aprons and forget about housework for a few days. They'll do so to attend the 31st annual homemakers conference July 22 to 25 at Michigan State university campus.

It is for urban women as well as rural, and is not restricted to home demonstration group members. Women may attend the conference all 4 days or as a day visitor.

The program will include classes for small groups, general sessions for the entire group and entertainment. Mrs. MacLeod says the featured speaker on Tuesday, Mrs. Lea Whitfield, state home demonstration leader from Ohio State university, will tell of the changing role of the homemaker. Afterwards an international tea on Shaw terrace is planned for all conference-goers. Evening entertainment will include travel talks and square dancing on the green.

After a morning of classes, "students" will have a chance to hear Dr. Carl Winters, pastor of First Baptist church in Oak Park, Illinois, on Wednesday afternoon. Tours of campus are planned for late afternoon. Wednesday evening there will be entertainment by top 4-H talent.

Second Guest

Before leaving Mason arrangements were made for a guest columnist. Since then something has been added — a second guest. Inspired by the beauty of St. Joseph island in Ontario, she took pen in hand to write this while the regular columnist took ax in hand to cut firewood. So let me introduce you to Mrs. Jim Brown. She's writing under the name of Jean Brown.

By JOAN BROWN

Canada, beautiful land of lakes... a fisherman's paradise... land of the north woods... so virgin and uncrowded that everywhere nature carves her picture from rock, tree, sky and water.

Picture a small ferry boat crossing a narrow channel of deep blue water splattered with green foam and speckled with reddish-brown rock formations. Soon the ferry docks and you drive off onto a black-topped causeway which spans more swiftly flowing waters and huge boulders. On the right is a breath-taking scene of cliffs, small wooded islands and birch trees with silvery bark. The evening sun peeks over a rim of hills in the west.

Father Marquette, LaSalle, Joliet, Champlain, Lewis & Clark and many other explorers walked upon St. Joseph. Ft. Mackinac was retaken by the British from Ft. St. Joseph.

Ft. St. Joseph hasn't been restored since the last battle. Indian arrowheads almost cover the ground. The fort's realism makes you wonder why other forts have been restored. Here we can see the old stone buildings crumbling into ruins. One can clearly see where cannon balls hit. You can guess as to what really happened at the fort... where the officers lived, where the soldiers were quartered, where the prison cells were located.

St. Joseph island is a jewel in the north channel of Lake Huron. Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, is 27 miles northwest. Ingham county is roughly the same size as St. Joseph island.

Youngsters thrive on St. Joseph island. They are little boys with reddish hair and freckled faces and little (flaxen-haired girls, healthy and rosy-cheeked. We have yet to see a frail looking child on the island.

The people of St. Joseph mostly are English and Scotch. People are warm with friendship and unspoiled by industrialization. The church is the core of family activity.

Peonies, iris and early phlox are just coming into bloom. The grass is green. Farming is poor here because of rock formations. Sea gulls seem to steal what seed is planted.

Tourists haven't really discovered St. Joseph although hundreds come every year. Many from Michigan own property here. Cars from as far as Texas and Connecticut can be seen too. Islands of assorted sizes make a lacy fringe engulfing St. Joseph.

Twice a week the Owen Sound freighter and passenger ship docks at Richard's Landing, the largest town on the island.

The sun is setting in front of our cabin. Best wishes from the picturesque island of the north.

ATTENDING the 1958 national meeting of the Future Homemakers of America in Kansas City, Missouri, is Sally Thompson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Thompson, Jackson road, Dansville.

Sally is a senior at Dansville high school and has been an FHA member for 3 years. She will take part in the Nation of Nations program and obtain new ideas for state, regional and chapter programs.

The 5-day meeting, attended by 450 teenage delegates, opened Monday. During the week the FHA girls will demonstrate their theme "Teens with a Purpose." Through general sessions and discussion groups they will stress the value of an education, career opportunities in home economics, becoming better citizens, and improving human relations.

Ingham Officer Gives Up Gavel

Register of Deeds Mia Bell Humphrey closed out her year as president of the Michigan Register of Deeds association at the annual convention at Sault Ste. Marie last week.

The Ingham county official turned over the gavel to the new president, Bernard Youngblood of Wayne county, in ceremonies Tuesday morning.

Other officers elected are Clara Turek Saginaw, first vice-president; William Butler, Delta, second vice-president; Leonard Feltes, Kalamazoo, third vice-president; and Donald Taylor, Montcalm, secretary-treasurer.

During the 3-day session at the Park hotel in Sault Ste. Marie the association members discussed and heard programs concerning Michigan's problems.

D. Hale Brinke was the feature speaker and briefed the county officers on the responsibilities and objectives of a constitutional convention for remodeling Michigan's government.

Helpful Hints In the Kitchen

Make your own brown coloring for your chop suey, for soups, gravies and sauces. Simply caramelize one-half cup sugar in a frying pan until it is almost burned. It will have lost its sweet caramel flavor at this point. Then add a little hot water to dissolve the caramelized sugar. That is all there is to it. Save what you do not need for later use. It will keep indefinitely in a bottle in the refrigerator.

No more shrunken pie crusts, if you bake them on the back of the pie tin. Perforate the crusts as you usually do. You can remove it easily—after it is baked—and place it inside the tin for filling. There will be very little breaking of edges of the crusts.

Those on the committee are Merna Cassidy, Marilyn Potter, Doug Wilson, Gary Gee and Mary Lou Hecht.

Swimming and a hot dog roast took place after the meeting.

A NEW RECORD—MAYBE—Herb Elliott, Australia's miller, gets kissed by Evelyn Pohl, "Queen of the Meet," after he cracked the recognized mark for the mile with a clocking of 3:57.9. The record is 3:58, by another Australian, John Landy. It is expected that Elliott may have some trouble getting recognition because the times are counted by fifths of a second instead of tenths. Counting by fifths, Elliott's mark would be the same as Landy's—3:58. The AAU meet was at Bakersfield, Calif.

Horses Win In 2 Races

Sharon Rodney, bay, 2-year-old trotting filly owned by Robert Palmer, Leslie fruit grower, won the first heat of the $2,000 Michigan colt stakes at Lake Odessa the Fourth of July. The filly took second in the second heat.

At Northville Wednesday night Palmer's 3-year-old trotter, Sharon Darnley, took second in the $2,000 trotting stakes. Time of the race was 2:09.

Family Plans Can Be Shared

Every member of the family should have an active part in planning and carrying out family activities, says Coral Morris, Michigan State university extension specialist in home management.

When making family plans together, everyone has a chance to express his views and understand those of others. Planning together usually results in more workable plans, according to Miss Morris.

Planning can be done at the time that best suits the family. For some, this might be at the supper table or whenever a problem comes up; others have regular meetings to discuss their plans.

Children should participate in family planning, too, Miss Morris points out. If they are young, discuss things with them at a level they can understand. What ever the age, they will probably be more interested in doing than planning.

Family planning affects the way things are done. The family members who help with the work should have a voice in making decisions that affect working, she adds.

Brightest Children Talk Early

The child who likes to talk and starts it at an early age may have superior intelligence.

This indication comes from Dr. Elizabeth M. Drews, researcher and psychologist at Michigan State university.

Although there are no adequate intelligence tests for the very young, Dr. Drews reported several qualities which may indicate aspects of giftedness:

"The child who likes to talk or sing, speaks in sentences at the age of 2 (although a few very bright children may not speak until 3 or 4); is adept at physical and motor activities at an early age—such as sitting up at 5 months or walking at 9 months; is intensely curious, wants to really know how things work, and can follow directions and be given a series of things to do and remember them.

"Any or all of these may indicate superior ability," she said.

Dr. Drews points out that a child who is intellectually superior can be measured quite accurately by the time he reaches the eighth grade. She emphasized that selection should not be based on only one IQ test but on as many various measures and observations as possible.

There is evidence, reported Dr. Drews, that adults can not only maintain a high level of intelligence but can actually make gains. This is contrary to previous thinking that intelligence leveled off at about the age of 16 and began to decline in the 20's.

Kenneth B. Loheed, Toronto, Ontario, businessman, has been named president of Kiwanis International. He was elected to the Kiwanis post July 2 at the 43rd annual convention of Kiwanis International in Chicago.

As head of Kiwanis International, Loheed will be official spokesman for more than a quarter-million Kiwanians in 4500 clubs located throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands.

Loheed, a long-time Toronto resident, owns and operates a retail shoe outlet in that city. He is active in professional, civic and service organizations in addition to his Kiwanis work. He is a past director of the Canadian Shoe Retailers association, and a past member of the Toronto Board of Trade. He is also a member of the board of stewards of the Eglington United Church. Loheed is a member of the Granite club of Toronto. He attended the Wharton school of finance of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. He is a former United States marine. He has been a member of Kiwanis for 33 years. Immediately prior to his selection as leader of Kiwanis International, he was vice-president of the organization for 2 years.

He has also served for a 2-year term as a trustee of Kiwanis International. Loheed is a past president of his home Kiwanis club in Toronto, and a former lieutenant-governor and governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis district. During his long career he has served as a member and as chairman of numerous district committees.

Attendance at the Chicago convention—Kiwanis' 43rd—numbers approximately 14,000, to make the convention one of the organization's largest. A high point of the affair was the laying of the cornerstone for Kiwanis' new home office building at 101 E. Erie in Chicago. The million-dollar structure will be ready for occupancy in January of 1959.

Search in River Reveals No Gun

A fishing expedition to the Grand river near Waverly road Tuesday morning failed to produce a pistol which, if found, would add important evidence in a charge against 2 Lansing youths. The boys are in Ingham county jail awaiting arraignment in circuit court on a charge of breaking and entering in the nighttime.

The gun was stolen from the Maple Grove Oil company in Lansing during one of several instances of breaking and entering committed by the same pair.

The spree began last February when David Schafer, 18, and David Cotton, 18, both of Lansing, broke into the Maple Grove Oil company office. They carried off a variety of items including cigars, candy, money and keys. Similar exploits took the boys to Mickey's Market on South Logan, Wirthmore Feed store, the Tastee Freez store, both of Lansing, and Jennings' store in Aurelius.

Both the Maple Grove Oil company and the Tastee Freez store were broken into twice. On the second sally into Maple Grove on April 28 the pistol was taken. The boys then decided to take a day off from their adventures and spend some time shooting turtles on the Grand river with their newly acquired possession. The gun wouldn't function, however, so it was tossed into the river.

Captain Versile Babcock led the boys out at the alleged site of their turtling trip but either they had forgotten where the pistol landed or they were not anxious to reveal its location. Neither boy was able to locate the weapon after a couple of hours of wading.

Schafer and Cotton were arrested July 1 when they apparently tried to steal some gas from the Novello grocery at the corner of M-99 and Miller road. Coming from a family of 5 brothers, Schafer is the fourth boy of the family to be arrested for a felony. Cotton has 8 brothers and sisters and is the third of the family to be arrested for a felony. Captain Babcock said. If convicted of the charge, the youths face possible terms of from 7 1/2 to 15 years each.

Certificate Promised

G. S. McIntyre, director of the state department of agriculture, informed supervisors Tuesday that the county is entitled to a certificate as a modified certified Bangs-free county. He reported that less than 1% of the dairy cattle and less than 5% of herds have Bangs disease. He praised supervisors for cooperating in the state campaign to rid the state of Bangs disease in dairy herds.

Stuart Edmonds Aids in Rescue

Stuart Edmonds of Midland gained part of the credit for the rescue of a small girl and her grandmother from Arbutus lake near Traverse City, Saturday. Edmonds is the son of the late Gordon Edmonds and Mrs. Edmonds who resided in Mason. Credited with the rescue are Edmonds and 2 fellow campers from Grand Rapids.

The girl, Cindy North, 7, of Detroit, waded over her depth. Her grandmother, Mrs. Irene North, 49, also of Detroit, attempted to rescue her but was pulled under. Both were taken unconscious from the water by the men but were soon revived.

Sessions Date Fixed

The August session of the board of supervisors will be August 11. Because of the primary election date the meeting of the board of canvassers the next day, supervisors decided not to meet the first week of the month. They decided on August 11 despite the fact that it is during fair week.

Gas Shortage Nears End As Consumers Expands

A solution to the problem of supplying natural gas for home heating to a waiting list of customers may be near. The president of Consumers Power company, Dan E. Karn, revealed last week that a contract with the Trunkline Gas company of Houston, Texas, has been negotiated which would supply Consumers eventually with an additional 200 million cubic feet of gas daily. All that is needed now is approval by the Federal Power commission for Trunkline to begin an $1.5 million dollar construction and expansion program to supply Consumers with the additional gas.

For Trunkline the expansion will involve a 204-mile extension of its main line from central Illinois to the Indiana-Michigan border where it will connect with the Consumers Power company system. The additional facilities now proposed will increase Trunkline's delivery capacity from its present 375 million cubic feet of gas daily to 510 million. Consumers will have to construct new facilities costing approximately $30,000,000 to handle the large quantities of gas involved in the contract with Trunkline. These new facilities will include a 26-inch pipeline from the Indiana line to a point near Plymouth, a 24-inch line from the Overisel gas field near Holland to a connection with the system of the Michigan Gas Storage company, a subsidiary of Consumers, north of Lansing, and 2 large compressor stations. If approved by FPC the construction program will take about 9 months to complete and is scheduled to provide gas to the Michigan homes in time for the 1959-1960 winter heating season. There is a waiting list of over 160,000 homes in the southern and central region of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan served by Consumers.

Frost Hastens Potato Growth

Frost must have encouraged the development of potatoes in the Albert Judson garden on Hawley road. His Irish Cobblers have matured. They run between a half-pound and three-quarters each. They were frosted 3 times.

Judson planted some of his potatoes on March 31 and the rest on Good Friday. They were well along when the May drought set in. They were planted on medium heavy soil.

Growers Get Wool Payments

Wool growers are getting shorn wool incentive payments of $15.50 for every 100 they received from the sale of shorn wool during the 1957 marketing year. That was the announcement of George Alein, chairman of the Ingham county ASC committee, Wednesday. The payment represents the difference between the national average price of wool during the year ended March 31 and the incentive level of 62c lb.

A payment of 33c per hundredweight on sales of unshorn lambs was made to discourage unusual shearing of lambs before marketing.

Payments in this county made on July 2 amounted to $3,590.19 on shorn wool and $1,309.84 on unshorn lambs for applications received by April 30, 1958.

This year's payment, representing a rate of 15.5% of receipts by wool growers, is lower than in previous years. Alein attributed this to the fact that wool prices were higher this past year. In 1955 the rate was 44.9% and in 1956 it was 40%.

The wool incentive program is authorized under the national wool act to run through 1958, expiring March 31, 1959.

Annexed Drains Will Bear Tax

Drainage districts will be assessed for preliminary work on drains even though they are no longer under county jurisdiction. Ingham supervisors Tuesday authorized spreading of assessments on 5 districts. They are S. Spartan avenue, $909; and Albert Lansing, $893; annexed to East Lansing from Meridian; and Johnston Extension, $7,259; Hillcrest, $9,041; and Delray, $1,810; annexed to Lansing from Lansing township.

The supervisors could have ordered the costs collected from petitioners, charged to the county general fund or to the disbursements transferred $100,000 from the county's general fund to the direct relief fund, and $2,500 from the general fund to the county fair premium fund.

The ways and means committee, on a request for funds for improvement of the Capital City airport as a county airport, reported that the matter has been referred to the state board of aeronautics. Supervisor Carl G. Card, chairman of the committee, said that Eaton and Clinton should share in airport construction and maintenance. He told of the tri-county planning committee and suggested that the request be placed before it.

Witness Group Plans for Trip

About 20 of Jehovah's Witnesses from the Mason congregation will attend an international convention in New York city July 27 through August 3.

Robert Warren, presiding minister of the Mason congregation, in announcing the plans of the local delegates, said that it has been necessary to cancel all local meetings from July 25 to August 7, due to many being away for the Christian assembly.

A limited program of meetings will be conducted in Kingdom Hall, at Lansing South Unit. An assistant minister will be in charge of the local group during the convention. The few witnesses not attending the assembly and others interested are invited to attend meetings held in the neighboring congregation at Lansing, Kingdom Hall is at 3015 South Washington.

When questioned about the expected attendance, Watchtower officials in New York pointed to the record attendance of 165,000 at the 1953 international convention in New York city's Yankee stadium. At that time several overflow areas provided space for the Witnesses. Yankee Stadium has again been secured, but because of the cramped quarters of the previous assembly the Polo Grounds will be used in addition. The program will be presented by the same participants following the first presentation in Yankee Stadium.

Most of those from the Mason congregation will be staying in private homes in New York city and nearby areas. All hotel accommodations will be filled, according to the Watchtower rooming committee, and the majority of attendees will be placed in homes following a house-to-house effort to find available accommodations.

Farm Youth Delegates Are Welcomed

NORTHERN IRELAND is not yet a week old to me, as I arrived at Belfast (capital city) only last Friday afternoon. In that period of time I have not gained enough background to speak with much personal authority. There is one exception. That has to do with the friendliness of the people. We might speak of our northern or southern hospitality, but it would have to be mighty fine to beat that of the Irish.

Upon our arrival in Belfast, we had more volunteer help than we could use. One man carefully pointed out the place we were to go (about 2 blocks from the bus depot). Another offered to walk that way with us so we wouldn't get lost, but we had to turn him down because Arthur McAllister and a photographer were waiting for us. Mr. McAllister is organizing secretary of the Young Farmers' clubs of Ulster (similar to 4-H). In a little better than 2 hours after our arrival, we were doing a TV show.

When I went to Killyleagh with Mr. Priestly, my host father, we visited several small shops. The going was slow because everyone had to stop and welcome me as if no one else had done so yet. The outstanding thing was the ease and easy, warm-hearted way in which they greeted me.

Further examples may be cited at church, at the neighbors, at home, or at any other place that I've made contact with an Irishman. To dwell a moment at home,

Golf Match Arranged

Members of Mason Lions and Kiwanis clubs are squaring off for the annual golf match. It is scheduled to start at 2 on Thursday afternoon, July 17. After the play there will be a snogsbord supper served at the golf course clubhouse.

... wearing the green ...

Oliver, my host brother, was an IPYE to Minnesota and California in 1956. He lives here with his parents. Mrs. Priestly is a hardworking woman. Her great joy seems to be waiting on everyone and stuffing us full of her good cooking. Pa Priestly is a man who is wise by experience and enjoys a wee bit of kidding around. He had great patience with me in showing me how to use a scythe to cut some grass. It takes a talent. Then there is brother Oliver who is trying to get the farm work done between rains and show me a good time as well. This is a difficult thing to achieve, but he seems to be doing fine, possibly at the cost of losing a bit of work.

I can say that I have been welcomed with open arms in Northern Ireland, and have no reservations in the statement I am considering changing my name to O'Dowski.

WILLIE WARDOWSKI, c/o Arthur McAllister, Organizing Secretary, YFCV, 18 Donegal Square East, Belfast, Northern Ireland.

BONN, GERMANY—After 10 days on board the Arosa Star we docked at Le Havre, France. What a relief it was to walk on land and not a rocking ship. We traveled to Paris where we stayed until the next evening. Because none of the 5 delegates going to Germany spoke French we had difficulty making the train on time. With minutes to spare, we boarded the train to find standing room only.

Our first 4 days in Germany were spent touring the Wiedersachsen section which is in the northwest bordering the sea. Because the land is low there are dikes to protect the farms from the sea. Also Germany has been building new dikes to get more land to farm. This is a slow process because it takes 15 to 20 years before the land can be used. After a dike is built the water must be pumped out and the rain must wash out the salt. Even though this takes a few years, the land is productive and valuable to farmers. The new land belongs to the government but is rented to the farmers.

Also in this section there is peat which is used to generate electricity. The peat is usually 1 to 8 feet deep. It is made into bricks and dried in the fields. It is then brought to the large furnace by small railroad cars where it is used to fire boilers. The heat which is given off is piped to greenhouses nearby. This enables the people to raise tomatoes, cucumbers, strawberries and mushrooms the year around and on a large scale. These products are shipped to all parts of the world. This is the only plant of its kind in Germany and will last about 20 years more.

Because the peat is on the top of the ground, it makes it difficult to farm the land. Before crops can be grown, a large plow, which has a blade about 10 feet high, is brought to the field. Cables are attached from both ends of the plow to large steam engines which are parked at both ends of the field. One engine will pull the plow down the field and then the other engine will pull it back. This turns 6 feet to 8 feet of peat over and puts 2 feet of good soil on top which can be put to good use.

Because this is quite expensive the government pays part of the fee.

While trying to be a good IPYE and take lots of pictures, I got quite close to the cables. All of a sudden the men decided to move the plow in the opposite direction and I had to move quickly. While trying to do so, I found myself ankle-deep in very soft, wet peat. What a mess I was but I got some pictures. The county agents just stood and laughed. We decided I must get cleaned up so all of us went swimming—what fun.

Tomorrow I meet my first host family. SUZIE THOMPSON, c/o Herr Karl H. Gebbers, BML, Postfach BML, Bonn 12, Germany

We've been open 10 days now and business so far has been better than we had any right to expect. And, much more important, so many of you have stopped in to say hello, look around and wish us well. Thank you.
To those of you who haven't been in yet, why not stop by and get acquainted? You're always welcome.
One old friend whose outlook has always been a little on the pessimistic side did suggest this was a poor time to start in business, what with the recession, a situation in the Middle East that might involve us in war any day now, etc., etc. He ordered a potted plant sent out, probably to help his wife bear up as well as may be until we are all overwhelmed by total disaster.

Farm Family at Work Makes Pleasant Sounds

By MRS. RAY PECK

It's a lot different trying to write this during vacation when the girls are home. I can see that some of my previous notions are going to have to go out the window. That's where a lot of them have gone!

Right now is one of the good times to grab a minute and see about writing this week's article.

Susy is in the garden hoeing her squash plants, singing at the top of her voice. Oh, I suppose she could do it louder but it's still plenty vocal. Sally is ironing her numerous skirts and blouses. . . record player all set up with a high pile of records to last for the duration of ironing. Sammy is on his tricycle going round and round the lightpole in the driveway. . . tooting a flute. . .

The window is open before me with the fragrance of honey-suckle wafting in very pleasantly. The scene outside of small boy, kittens, dog, banties and waving corn is a happy one. The sounds are heard on something for the next few minutes this should be easy. When they are around and behind on top of me. . . it's hard sometimes. This then would consist of, "Mama, did you know? . . . Mama, may I? . . . Mama, you said that we could go or not go or might go. . . so can we? . . . Mama, look. . . Mama, see. See, Mama."

Someone is going to ask. . . So all that racket is better than your dear little children asking simple questions?

Is this simple? Sammy: What are cats for? Do people ever eat cats? Why not? Would you want to eat a cat, Mama? Would they taste like a chicken or a pig or beef?

Susy: Do you know that Niagara Falls stopped once? Do you know when it was? Do you know that there is a wisteria vine that covers almost an acre?

Sally: Will you come and see if I have this pattern laid out right for my housecoat? (She has it laid out on the dining room table on top of the lace table cloth.) Of course, she's never cut it yet on the few times she forgot to take it off first.

In the garden the weeds are calling too. They may not make such a loud cry for help as the children do but they do speak to you.

It's hard to sit and write when you can see so much to do. The perennial beds are something awful. I put them on my mental list the first thing every morning. . . but somehow they do wait while other things such as food, clothing and chickens come first. And lots of time spent with the children. I've been to the woods and fields several times and will go at the drop of a hat.

Somehow killdeer nests do not stay there forever. Wait just one day and it might be too late, for once they are hatched there is no nest. Pete has told the children that they should try to see a killdeer egg hatch because they kick the shell open and start running. They are determined to watch a nest this spring to see. They have their eyes on 3 of them.

A lot of time is spent on my chickens. I have 40 hens. They have an automatic waterer so that saves a lot of work but the eggs have to be gathered 4 times a day. No one says that they have to be but it's better. They all want to lay in 2 nests and if anyone has a good idea how to break them of this let me know. They have laid like crazy and surely are wonderful birds. Never saw anything like the way they lay.

There are 530 young chickens in 2 brooder coops and they don't have running water except what we run out to them. This is the first time we've never lost a chick. We had them deneked too which figure is a little hard on them.

We got them later this year and used heat bulbs. It would be quite cool in there but they didn't sound or seem uncomfortable. They could run under the bulbs. According to how we've had it with the brooder house other years we must have been cooking them.

In an hour I'm going to rake 20 acres of hay. We have a new hay rake and Sammy says that it will be a lot of fun and he wishes he was big enough. I think it will be fun, too. It is a mighty nice place out in a fragrant hayfield.

Pete can keep on cultivating. I'll rake hay. Sally will get dinner. Susy and Sammy tend chickens. It is just like a big jigsaw puzzle with all the scenes falling into place to make a happy farm picture. Well, I think we're happy and wouldn't trade with anyone on earth!

Nobody wants them!

Just about anything you can name—from aardvark to zinnia—costs more today than it used to. And one thing that absolutely nobody wants carries just about the fastest-rising price tag of all. I mean: accidents.

Nobody wants them. But they keep right on happening, and if you own a car or a home you are wide open to a staggering lawsuit if you are responsible for someone's injury.

The average amount paid to each claimant in 1940 was $3,000 in one state. By last year, the amount was almost four times as great—$11,500. Suppose your child left a roller skate on the sidewalk, someone fell on it, suffered an injury and filed a suit against you. Could you easily spare $11,500?

If not, right now would be a good time for you to phone an independent insurance agent. Myself, for instance. I'll check your liability insurance—without charge or obligation—to make sure that you are fully protected against such claims.

Justice Black Draws Reply

Political attacks upon the Michigan legislature by Democrats are usually old hat. But last week legislators were surprised and disgusted by a political broadside from an unexpected quarter—a Democrat justice of the Michigan supreme court.

Justice Eugene Black in an unheard-of lack of responsibility and respect for his high position on the court unleashed a blast at all legislators calling them "surly old dogs."

After singling out the state senator from his own district for some special name-calling, the supreme court justice ticked off his political and social program which, among other things, included doing away with our 123-year-old legislative system and substituting a small unicameral body in its place.

The justice demonstrated that he no longer has any intention of maintaining the fiction of non-partisanship on our highest court. He can no longer claim impartiality in reviewing and writing opinions on legislation passed by the Michigan legislature—not when he holds the senate and the house in such contempt.

Many of the so-called faults Judge Black attributed to the legislature are, as most responsible public officials know, part of the price we pay for doing things in a democratic way. Legislators in a democracy are not elected to ram things down their constituents' throats in a dictatorial fashion. We were elected to seek the public interest through the conciliation of many varied interests of our people throughout the state. This takes time, hard work and compromise.

Oddly enough, some of the other faults charged to us by the judge are actually the shortcomings of improper administration, and that goes right to the governor's office and the attitude displayed there. Perhaps Justice Black should look to the executive

Revival Services

An editor can take his readers to a great revival. After reading the editorials in last week's paper I felt as though I was sitting in a large tabernacle listening to the singing of the opening hymn. I thought I saw an editor standing before a great throng of people asking the big question "How do your lights shine—as Americans—as Christians?" Someone might ask what Doesburg is writing these few words for. I have always said I shall be truthful with my fellowmen. More than being a Christian I am better known as a child of God. I know, too, if I were called home I would miss the light and be caught in the darkness.

How can one partake of nicotine and alcohol and still be a Christian attending the house of the Lord? I would say to such a one, brother, you had better light your lantern as you are groping in the dark.

In my life I have seen many men take the oath with their hands upon the sacred book only to blow out their own candle soon after. When a man's light goes out and there is still some oil in the vessel it is great to share with your fellowman.

The politicians would do well to walk in the light of their promises.

Man can yet lift the latch from his own gate, sit on his own front porch with his pipe and call a friendly greeting over the fence to his neighbor, knowing that his accounts are all settled, his business deals on the level, and that he has perhaps shown some kindness to some less fortunate one along the way.

END OF THE "EMPRESS BAY"—With the Brooklyn Bridge in the background, the bow of the gasoline tanker "Empress Bay" slowly slides beneath the waters of the East River. The tanker was rammed by the Swedish freighter "Nebraska," which was towed to port still afloat. Two crewmen aboard the tanker were killed but 49 were carried off the doomed ship by fire-fighting craft. The fire and explosion on the tanker after the collision spread to both ships and the Manhattan Bridge overhead. A warning buoy is in the foreground.

Michigan's 10,500 State Prisoners Are Much Like People on Outside

BY ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Prisoners are people in trouble. They spend part, perhaps most, of their lives behind bars because they violated the law that society has developed to govern itself.

Michigan has 10,500 prisoners in 3 major institutions at Jackson, Marquette and Ionia; the Cassidy Lake training school, the Detroit House of Correction and 12 camps.

Because penology has become a science (or at least is called that) in Michigan and elsewhere, prisoners no longer are lashed or starved—but major faults still exist.

"If you want to see what a prisoner looks like, look in the mirror," said Robert M. Scott, youth division director in the state corrections department 3 years ago.

Corrections officials for years have sought to eliminate the "ancient and asinine inequities" in the state's penal code.

ALAN CURTIS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loris Curtis of Mason, and a graduate of the school of music at Michigan State, recently received a renewal of his Fulbright grant for study at the University of Amsterdam.

Curtis, who is studying musicology, recently located a collection of Dutch harpsichord music of the 17th century which includes music by the early Dutch organist and composer, Sweelinck, and a manuscript of variations on "Wilhelmus," the Dutch national anthem.

Traffic Claims Victim No. 3

Ingham's traffic toll for 1958 now stands at 3. The third victim was Lawrence J. VanSickle, 24, Lansing. He died in a Lansing hospital Saturday. He was injured in an accident the previous Saturday night on Lake Lansing road.

James E. Rosenberg, 25, of DeWitt, was killed at the scene of the accident.

VanSickle is survived by the wife, a son and a daughter, and his mother, Mrs. Effie VanSickle, Lansing.

Until the accident on Lake Lansing road, Ingham county outside of Lansing had not had a fatal accident this year. On Tuesday night of last week Ronald Showerman, 17, Williamston, lost his life when his car left Holt road and struck a tree.

Webberville Aids Monroe Family

Community spirit is being manifested in Webberville for the benefit of Jim Monroe and his family.

Monroe was hospitalized last February in Lansing's Edward W. Sparrow hospital where he underwent major surgery. On June 16 he was transferred, in critical condition, to the Henry Ford hospital in Detroit where his condition remains serious.

Plans for a variety of fund-raising activities were set in motion by Mrs. James Nelson and Mrs. Leslie Boeing. They have enlisted the support of the Rumpus club, the local chapter of the OES, the Junior Police, Rebeekahs, VFW Auxiliary, WSCS of the Methodist church and the Boy Scouts.

A benefit dance will highlight the activities which include a canister campaign, bake sales and a car wash. The dance is scheduled to take place at the Webberville community hall from 9 p. m. to 1 p. m. on Friday, July 11.

Monroe, a former resident of Mason, is married to the former Peggy Cavanaugh of Williamston and is the father of 2 sons—Jimmy, 22 months old and Jerry, 7 months.

WHEATFIELD METHODIST CHURCH will celebrate its 60th anniversary Sunday, July 20, at the morning worship service at 10 o'clock. Bishop Marshall R. Reed, D. D., will deliver the sermon.

Wheatfield Church Plans 60th Anniversary Service

Wheatfield Methodist church is in Wheatfield township, Ingham county, at the corner of Holt and Burkley roads. Rev. Andrew T. Butt is the pastor having served the church the past year.

The church is characteristic of rural churches throughout America. It had its inception in 1890 when Mr. and Mrs. Addison Bird invited neighbors into conference and their decision was to hold church school services each Sunday morning in the Westgate schoolhouse. Rev. Samuel Bird, a retired minister, guided the group and conducted the worship. A short time later Rev. Norton Clark was appointed to the new charge and with the assistance of 3 young laymen, Floyd Gorsline, Jesse Brett and Lewis Austin, led the newly-formed group in the program of building a church.

In 1897 Rev. H. R. Beatty assumed the pastorate. The site for the church building was given by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cole. On the building committee were Rev. Beatty, George Bickert and Roland Underwood. The solicitors for the fund were Andrew Stoffer and Harvey Cole.

The Wheatfield church, though decidedly rural, is well-organized in all departments and serves a community of loyal people. Many folk refer to their church in terms, "The church in the wild-wood." Former members and friends of the church will be welcomed at the anniversary service.

Hearing Is Called

The Ingham county board of education has set a hearing Tuesday night, July 15, to consider the transfer of 97 acres of the Ora Campbell estate from the Pollok district in Wheatfield to the Mason district. The acreage fronts on Meridian road. The hearing will be at the county board of education office in Mason, beginning at 8.

Republican night on Saturday, at which Senator Charles Potter and the Republican candidate for governor, Paul D. Bugwell, will appear. Acts each night will be presented by professionals along with picked amateur acts.

Bible Conference Draws Speakers

The third week of the Gull Lake Bible and missionary conference will begin Saturday night, July 12, and will continue nightly through Friday, July 18.

Featured during the evening services which begin at 7:30 will be the Gospel Messengers, a travelling musical ensemble from the William Jennings Bryan university, speakers Dr. Lehman Strauss, new pastor of the Highland Park Baptist church, and Dr. S. Franklin Logsdon of Largo, Florida, pastor and Bible teacher.

Frank Boggs, recording artist and minister of music at the First Baptist church in Tallahassee, Florida, will sing. Song leader for all services will be Rev. Donald Brandt of Grand Rapids.

Fair Board Lets Construction Job

Contracts were let at the June meeting of the Ingham county fair board for the construction of a new exhibit building. It was decided to build before this year's fair. The building will be pole and steel type and will be 40 by 100 feet. According to the contractor, Dexter Thornton of Williamston, it will be ready by fair time, August 11.

During the course of the meeting it was decided that entries for all open class exhibits are to be in the extension office by August 5.

The extension office at the fairgrounds is getting an addition which will double the present size. The judges' stand is undergoing a renovation and 600 feet of inside rail is being repaired on the track in time for this year's racing program. The infield for the use of softball practice for city and 4-H teams will be rehabilitated and a good diamond is expected to be completed for next year's fair.

Clubs to Enter 4-H Demo-Festo

All Ingham county 4-H clubs are eligible to participate in "Demo-Festo" night Thursday evening, July 24, at 7:30 p. m. at the court house in Mason.

The 3 4-H contests scheduled are model business meeting, 4-H promotional talks (public speaking) and junior demonstration. Each community leader should return the entry sheet for his club to the extension office by Tuesday, July 15.

Blue ribbon winners will receive awards.

State School Aid Shows Decrease

Revenue received from the state toward the operation of Ingham schools was down slightly from last year's total according to figures released by county school superintendent, Alton Stroud.

Despite the fact that enrollment in the schools was up from 40,364 in 1956-57 to 41,752 in 1957-58 receipts from the state aid fund were down from $5,921,721.07 in the former period to $5,743,579.12 in the latter. Stroud explained this as being due to a slight change in the state aid formula. However, he expects the state aid figure next year will be greater than the 1956-57 amount since enrollment will probably increase to about 43,000 pupils, he indicated.

Funds from the state primary fund showed an increase from $1,129,844.28 in 1956-57 to $1,270,287.70 in 1957-58. Total receipts from the state amounted to $7,013,866.82 in 1957-58 as compared with $7,051,565.35 in 1956-57. Stroud estimated the total cost of operating the schools in the county to be approximately $13,750,000 last year, excluding construction and interest or payment on debt. Thus the state contribution represents an amount well over half the total cost of operating the schools in Ingham county, Stroud said.

The 1958 state farm management tour is scheduled for Antrim and Kalkaska counties on July 24.

Director Gus Harrison pointed to the law which provides a longer prison sentence for possessing burglary tools than for using them.

There are 21 offenses in Michigan for which a life sentence can be imposed.

There are broad inconsistencies between the stiff penalties for crimes against property and the lighter sentences for offenses against people.

Severe sentences for forgery and embezzlement, for instance—up to 10 years—were forced into the law books years ago by banking interests to protect themselves.

Michigan's penal code still contains a penalty for inciting Indians to riot. Because of the probate court waiver law, children under 17 can be sentenced to prison and treated like adults.

Inequities in the system were brought to a head following the 1952 riots at Jackson, which brought a major reorganization in the state corrections system.

Most of the ills of the system were traced by the experts to the penal code. Citizen groups are campaigning with officials for reforms.

Penologists insist that their concern in changing the penal code is not to soften conditions for inmates or coddle criminals who break the law.

"We believe that a more equitable code will give Michigan a better chance to help prisoners rehabilitate themselves and be restored to society," said Harrison.

Short of statutory changes, the corrections system has developed a program of self-help in each institution and camp.

There are Alcoholics Anonymous units inside the walls—even at Cassidy Lake, where prisoners are all under the minimum age of 21 which would qualify them to obtain liquor.

There are veterans' organizations, public speaking groups and academic programs. State-paid chaplains have been given a larger role in rehabilitation.

Where psychologists, the "egg-heads" of the profession, who counseled inmates, ran into conflicts with custodial personnel several years ago, they now work together more harmoniously.

The Red Cross depends upon prisoners in state institutions for donations when blood supplies are diminished in civilian blood banks.

At Jackson, prisoners stage shows and boxing matches to raise money for furnishings for a new chapel. Help from the free world has been forthcoming, but more is needed.

Prison newspapers often are the gauge of the men behind bars.

They often warn their inmate readers that they must write home more often to keep family ties intact; play a major role in keeping the men informed and linked to the world outside.

All of this assumes an importance to the taxpayers who will spend $15,000,000 this year to keep the state's prisons operating and more in future years.

The picture in the public mind of a prisoner as a fanged and brutal sub-human type is changing, and the method of dealing with him is changing from punishment to reform.

"Generally, the prison population is a pretty good cross-section of the community in which every-one lives," said Harrison.

Giveaways Invite Corruption

Government officials—Republicans and Democrats alike—who accept expensive gifts demonstrate their unfitness for office.

Yet our present system of government and political organization invites such opportunities for corruption.

The people see billions of their tax dollars tossed away on various foreign and domestic aid programs. They hear about desert sheiks grabbing off some of the millions which American taxpayers have shelled out for economic or military aid. They hear about the graft and corruption which American dollars finance in Asia and elsewhere. They hear about young Trujillo using as a pleasure yacht the war vessels the U. S. has provided his dictator father. They hear about the billions which are tossed around to keep Dictator Tito a little bit pouty with Dictator Khrushchev. They see as accepted government policy the buying of friendships.

They can have a look at Michigan and at the millions of dollars collected in union dues here to elect so-called friends of labor to high office. They have heard of the dues being collected and used to elect a United States senator to serve as an errand boy. They have heard of the dues used to elect congressmen and legislators and state officials.

A far greater threat than Russia or Red China or Egypt to this nation is the menace of crime and corruption—of influence by big labor and big business and big politics—on government. This greed and avarice is epidemic. It pyramids with the size of government and the distance from home that government gets.

Here in Ingham county we hear the boast of senators and congressmen that they are getting millions of dollars for a Grand river boondoggle that is unwanted and unneeded, yet the protests are few and feeble. Michigan's state government is demanding more federal aid, not because it is needed but because federal money somehow is easier spent than state money.

Bernard Goldfine is a symbol of big government, big business and big labor. He sees big government use big money to buy friends abroad and votes at home. He sees big government mollify and pacify big labor. He sees congressmen and legislators elected through use of union dues.

It is little wonder that the Goldfines also try to buy friendships, or at least to reward them.

Giveaways by government invite corruption. Using dues and taxes to buy friends in state capitals, in Washington or abroad are invitations for Goldfines everywhere to get into the act.

We have no right to be shocked over discovery that vicuna coats, hotel bills and expensive rugs have been given as tokens of friendship to government officials. That's how Trujillo, Tito and a score of other foreigners cash in. The Bernard Goldfines, upon learning that the U. S. government pays high prices for friendships, can hardly be blamed for assuming that maybe they ought to buy some.

Giveaways by government invite corruption.

Mason's Dog Ordinance

Mason councilmen adopted a new ordinance controlling dogs. Under the old ordinance dogs were confined for April, May and June. Under the new ordinance dogs are not permitted to run at large for an additional 3 months—July, August and September. Dogs probably don't like the new ordinance. There are also some people who don't.

There has been a lot of polite talk about dogs and gardens. Councilmen say that dogs are destructive to shrubs and gardens. That may be true, yet it isn't the real reason for adoption of the new ordinance. The reason is that dogs litter the lawns of neighbors. Until owners succeed in training dogs to use comfort stations at home those owners must expect neighbors to resent such use of their lawns.

There's little use attempting to conceal the real reason for the dog ordinance. The issue isn't one of love or hatred for dogs, or for protection of evergreens or flower beds. It is one of sanitation during a period of the year when people want to frolic on their lawns.

Taxpayers Are Gullible

The American taxpayer must be the most gullible creature on the face of the earth.

Nowhere is it more evident than in the field of agriculture.

First the taxpayer digs down deep to help subsidize farm technological advances. In no other endeavor, except possibly the nuclear physics program, does the government provide such a wide variety of services to help increase production.

U. S. department of agriculture workers and extension specialists work all the time to devise ways for the American farmer to raise more and more per acre. Thousands of paid and volunteer workers spend the tax dollar to increase productivity.

Then the taxpayer digs down deep into his other pocket and picks up the tab for paying for the surplus farm crops these technological advances produce.

Such a double-fisted attack on the pocketbook seems severe enough, but it doesn't end there. Under the soil bank program the American taxpayer pays another chunk of cash to keep land out of production.

The irony of the whole crazy system is that food prices keep jumping higher and higher, a fact which touches the same pocketbook for the fourth time.

Agricultural research staffs should spend more time on developing new markets, new uses for old products and other ways to cut down the farm commodity surplus pile.

Such a program would relieve the American taxpayer of an ever-increasing burden.

Keep Mail Windows Open

Many migrant workers make Mason their headquarters. They work long days in the field. They leave early and get back late. They have difficulty in being at the postoffice when windows are open for business. They want to buy money orders to send back to Mexico. They want to get their mail from the general delivery window. They want to send packages.

Mason postoffice workers know that the present schedule on window service is inadequate. They are willing to keep the windows open longer, but they are forbidden to do so. It's not a matter of more help being needed to render better service. It's just an edict from Washington that windows shall be open only 8 hours a day even though the postoffice is open 12 hours a day.

When postage rates go up August 1 improved postal service should be offered. One improvement is an extension of window hours. Windows should open earlier and close later.

Down by the SYCAMORE

A good place to exercise senses on a pleasant Sunday afternoon is at Michigan State university. All 5 senses can be gracefully exercised at the sunken gardens alongside the new library. Those 5 senses as distinguished by Aristotle were and still are sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch. Music from the carillon played by Wendell Westcott exercises the sense of hearing. The other 4 senses can be nourished from the garden. The beautiful flowers exercise sight and smell, the leaves exercise taste and touch.

Displayed in the garden are thousands of herbs and plants from all over the world. Along with the rare imported plants are choice specimens of native plantain, buckhorn, wild carrot and dandelion as thrifty as those in my lawn.

Another sight and not so far away is the 10-acre field of statice on the Art Jewett farm at Mason's east city limits. That statice will be sent out all over the United States to be used in funeral wreaths and wedding bouquets. Have a look at it now. It's even prettier in the field.

Kodachrome and Kodacolor enthusiasts can also get many good shots in the university gardens, at the new MSU library and the pools in front of it. Water lilies are now in bloom. There is another pool closer, though, which has even more lilies with photogenic goldfish and bullfrogs thrown in as an extra inducement. That's the Vernon J. Brown pool on Diamond road—not the pond on the back of the farm.

When residents of Quebec want to send greetings to a sick friend, or want to felicitate someone on a birthday or a wedding, or express sympathy over a death, they don't paw around at a greeting card stand. They visit the Sentiment Shop. There, neatly arrayed and helpfully catalogued are sentiments for every occasion—either mass-produced or custom-made.

Ruth Schmitter has courage. No one in her Girl Scout troop worked harder toward raising funds for the trip to Mexico. Then came the medical exams for the 10 girls. No one suspected but what Ruth would pass with flying colors. She looked so strong and healthy. But the exam indicated a dangerous kidney condition. There was no crying, no whining, Ruth realized that her first task was to do just what the doctors said and they said to stay home and in bed.

The new Methodist preacher E. Lenton (and why not spell it Lenten?) Nova Scotians are called Blueosenses? Why? The nickname was acquired from a potato. Nova Scotians boasted that the Blueosense potato was the best in the world and somehow the name of the potato became the name of the people who ate it.

Where church congregations often make mistakes is in the choice of hymns. Talented musicians choose the hymnbooks and the hymns, leaving it up to the untalented to moan and groan through them. Mason Presbyterians are making a change. They have appointed a committee made up of those who can't sing well to choose new hymnbooks containing songs they can sing best.

One discovery is that many of the biggest churches have hymnbooks with words only—no music at all. And that's logical. Not one person in 50 at a church service pays any attention to the music score. The words are sung to the tune played on the piano or organ. Why waste money pro-

Some of Canada's greatest tourist attractions are the Royal Canadian Mounted police, the red-coated guardsmen at old forts and the tartan-clad regiments at military installations. Here in the U.S. we don't make use of such color. If we dressed the regular army in kilts recruiting officers would

I didn't know what stripes meant either until a legal document I was trying to make out sent me to the dictionary. What does he see? A school of minnows? A shining pebble? Or his own wavering reflection?

Whatever it is, he sees through the wonderful eyes of a child. God's creations are new and bright to him. He is fascinated by the sight of a bee searching for pollen. He marvels at the color of autumn leaves. He is enchanted by the brilliance of a star.

Somewhere along the line, most of us lose our childhood vision. We forget to wonder. We forget to marvel. Sometimes we even forget God.

We can get our perspective back into sharp, clear focus through the Church. We can recapture and strengthen our love for God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

CHEMICALS KILL WEEDS

Test Plots Prove Worth

Chemical control for weeds is here to stay. More farmers are using chemicals to control weeds in their crops each year.

New chemicals are being developed which do a more selective job. Each season finds new materials on the market.

The extension staff put out demonstration plots around Ingham county where chemical weed control results may be seen.

In the Webberville area Simazin and 2,4-D were used for comparison tests on corn at planting time without cultivation. These were used at the Don McKenzie farm on Frost road, one-half mile east of Elm road south of Webberville, east side of corn field next to road.

There are plots on both of the farm management day farms, at the Hershey Head and Rex Townsend farms, which can be seen July 25.

There is also a plot on the Paul Simpson corn field, east of the house. This plot shows 2, 4-D at planting, Simazin at 1 and 2 lb per acre at planting and Dalapon on quack grass.

Noxious weeds were sprayed on the roadside at Tuttle and Lyons roads southwest of Mason.

2,4-D Amine was used on burdock, thistle and wild carrot about June 18. It should have been earlier but good results are showing.

At this same location cattails and water cress were sprayed in the ditch with 3 cups of Dalapon per gallon of water. The cattails are completely brown. The water cress above the water is killed. Results of the kill on all of it are not positive.

On Aurelius road south of Columbus MCP was sprayed on mustard in a new cover seedling— $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb per acre. Excellent kill is showing here.

Older Hens Add Profits

Poultrymen in the egg production business may be able to boost profits by going to a multiple hatch system.

That's the opinion of Dean McKee, agricultural economist researcher at Michigan State university.

Profits may be increased by as much as 30c to 40c per bird when replacement pullets are raised in 4 separate batches over the year and when hens are kept in the laying flock about 22 months, McKee said.

Under McKee's system, pullet raising is concentrated in the late summer and early winter months. Pullets enter the laying flock when small eggs are most favorably priced relative to medium and large eggs.

Most poultrymen start their pullets once a year in early spring and keep the hens in the flock about 12 months.

By starting the replacement flock in a series of separate batches, McKee pointed out that the poultry house is used to near capacity all year. Egg production is more even throughout the year.

McKee studied laying cycles of hens, cost of keeping hens and price cycles. By balancing costs and returns, he found that in most cases hens can profitably be kept longer even though they go down some in production after their first year.

With long laying periods, the investment in hens is more fully exploited and the annual rate of replacement is reduced, McKee explained. The result is lower annual costs.

The Michigan State researcher cautioned, however, that the most profitable organization of the laying enterprise depends upon many factors. Take the development of strains of chickens capable of a sustained level of production over a long period. This would tend to favor keeping hens in the laying flock longer.

Also, movement of the seasonal price pattern might change the time when laying flock replacements should be started. The poultryman must continuously re-evaluate the operation if he is to take advantage of changes that are taking place, McKee says.

Minnis Captures Tractor Crown

Carl Minnis of Dansville won first prize in a tractor operator's contest which took place at Cheboygan the week of June 22.

The contest was in conjunction with the festivities celebrating the dedication of the Mackinac bridge. Minnis was awarded an engraved trophy in recognition of his tractor driving abilities.

There are also 3-man grand juries and one-man grand juries. Generally, grand jurors are not required to disclose what took place among or before them. There are exceptions to this such as being required to disclose that the testimony of a witness examined before them is consistent with, or different from, the evidence given by that witness at a subsequent trial. Whether or not King George would have fared better before today's grand jurors is a moot question. There seems to be no questions however, that he, too, recognized the authority of that legal document.

Enjoying Outdoor Michigan

Camping in Michigan attracts thousands of new enthusiasts each year to state parks and forests. There's something about that open fire cooking that just can't be duplicated in a modern kitchen. More than 500,000 persons will use campgrounds in Michigan state parks this year, while thousands of others will "rough it" in state forests.

Farm Bureau Makes Plans For Picnic at Mason Park

The annual county Farm Bureau picnic will take place at the William H. Rayner park, Mason, Sunday afternoon, July 13, at 1:30. The picnic is for all Farm Bureau families and friends in the county.

Those attending are asked to take a picnic dinner, drink, and table service. The Farm Bureau will furnish ice cream. Bruce Deeg is chairman of arrangements. Recreation has been planned by the Farm Bureau young people's group.

Should it rain that afternoon the picnic will take place the following Sunday, July 20.

Warm Weather Makes Trouble

Summer is the time for flaws in milk handling system to give trouble.

Warm weather gives bacteria the boost they need to multiply rapidly, Dick Nelson, Ingham extension agent, warned.

Cooling milk promptly during the warm weather is the best way to keep bacterial growth down. Equipment must be checked to make sure it is cooling milk below 50 degrees F. in  $\frac{1}{2}$  hours or less.

The agricultural agent also reminded dairymen to check equipment for cleanliness. Too often it is assumed that because automatic cleaning equipment has been installed, no further attention need be given to the milking system.

Surfaces of all equipment coming in contact with milk need to be bright, shiny and free from milkstone. Also milkster inflations should be checked to see that they are in good working condition as well as clean. Many Michigan dairymen are storing inflations in a cold dry solution weekly to keep them in good condition.

Weed Identity Aids Controls

It pays to know your weeds, especially if you want to control them with chemicals.

Scientists at the Michigan agricultural experiment station pointed out that there are many chemicals that will kill weeds. But their use is specific.

Certain chemicals have been developed to kill one or only a few species of weeds. Some are very selective; they will kill a certain weed growing in with other plants while not damaging the desired plants.

Farmers can get help in identifying weeds from county agricultural agents. If the weed can't be identified locally, send it to the department of botany and plant pathology, Michigan State university, for identification.

Books Feature Stories of How Culture Came to Rural America

A famous opera star once had her high C cut off by a sheriff and a pack of bloodhounds chasing through the tent. Singing in a tent? Yes, and sometimes singers had to compete with the cows mooing in nearby pasture. It all happened under the auspices of Chautauqua, or how culture and entertainment came to the rural areas of America.

A pioneer of Chautauqua tells all about it in Culture Under Canvases by Harry P. Harrison, as told to Karl Detzer. Both residents of Leland, Michigan, they recall some of the headline performers. William Jennings Bryan, Robert M. LaFollette, Calvin Coolidge, Madame Schumann-Heine, Charles McCarthy, the Ben Greet Players, all had their day.

Other designs under canvases are drawn by David Lano in A Wandering Showman, I.

He spent 75-years as a showman in this country. He left his mark on the population as a tattooer and puppet-master. It was a rough life but a dirty one. Lano travelled with circuses from time to time, but preferred the smaller shows and smaller towns. He wintered in Flint for many years, working in the automobile industry between bows.

It still seems like an especially appalling disaster, the burning of the Hindenburg. It seemed to mark the end of the lighter-than-air ships. J. Gordon Vaeth asks us to not forget the others, namely the Graf Zeppelin. He calls it the adventures of an aerial globe-trotter, and combines it with the life story of its commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener.

A French peasant was closest to the scene of the crash of the R 101 in France. He saw it fall and explode before he ran terrified, deeper into the woods. The R 101 was the greatest airship ever built, according to James Leasor, author of The Millionth Chance. He claims the ship was sacrificed for political reasons, failure to take sound advice, plus bungling in high places. Nevil Shute Norway, British author and engineer who helped build the ship, agrees that politics wrecked the R 101.

Charles Finney's eyes brought sinners to their knees. His eyes looked on Bowery bums and millionaires alike, we find in They Gathered at the River by Bernard Weisberger. Revivalism began in the backwoods of Kentucky and ended with Billy Sunday, according to Weisberger. This book also revives the unforgettable figures of Lyman Beecher and Dwight L. Moody, men who would argue and shout down sin whenever they found it.

Even as a territory, Michigan's future was determined to a great extent by an artificial waterway.

Perhaps it will be so again. So far the prospects of the St. Lawrence Seaway have not approached the high pitch of the Canal Fever of more than 100 years ago.

Madeleine Waggoner provides an account of the Great Canal Era, 1817-1850 in her book, The Long Haul West. She shows how midwestern states went into debt building canals, which they saw as a necessary attraction for settlers. And how the canals grew along with one of the greatest migrations in history, the American push westward.

In the west beyond canals were other trails, deeply marked by men and animals. Marl Sandoz delineates them with blood, bullets and steers in The Cattlemen from the Rio Grande across the far Marias.

As the iron trails moved in, cattle herds were moved to railheads. Abilene, Ogalala, and Dodge City were wide open, full of characters like Wild Bill Hickok, the Masterstons, and Wyatt Earp. But these men do not dominate the book, no more than they dominated the cattlemen.

A scientist and writer of science fiction plays games with numbers. He is Isaac Asimov, author of Only a Trillion. To get our feet on the ground he assures us that one million inches is just under 16 miles. On the other hand, a trillion inches is equal to 15,800,000 miles, or more than 600 times around the earth plus a trip to the moon. See how those inches count up?

A heavy mortality in 21 litters of pigs and a variety of eye defects in another 11 litters in 4 herds, as a result of vitamin A deficiency, is reported in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical association.

The feed for the sows in 3 herds and in all but 2 sows in the fourth herd was grossly deficient in vitamin A. All of the sows involved appeared normal, and except for the blindness, there were few outward abnormalities in the pigs. All were farrowed at full term.

In the herd where 2 sows were fed supplementary vitamin A, the treated sows farrowed normal pigs, while the pigs in the 2 other litters showed eye defects ranging from complete disorganization to almost normal, the report said.

The sun delivers to earth each day an amount of heat equal to that generated by the burning of 122 trillions of tons of soft coal.

Soaked Alfalfa Harms Cattle

Several cases of poisoning in cattle and calves have been reported by veterinary practitioners that seem to point to water-damaged, first-cutting alfalfa hay, the American Veterinary Medical association reports.

The water-damage may occur either while the alfalfa is still growing, or in the process of curing. Members of the veterinary faculty at Oklahoma State university, Stillwater, are conducting investigations to determine the effect of moisture on the nutritive value and possible toxicity of alfalfa hay at various stages of growth and curing.

Bumper Farm Production Is Foreseen

By CARL COLLIN

If weather conditions continue about average for the next few weeks, there's every indication that there will be a near record production of farm crops. Some areas have taken a beating from severe storms in recent weeks. Parts of Iowa, for instance, have been hit hard enough for the president to declare them disaster areas. There may be some trouble in the winter wheat areas because of heavy storms at harvest time.

Just about the time this is published the USDA will issue its really first important crop report of the season.

If the trend in USDA estimates follows those of the country's leading private crop forecaster, wheat yields will show an increase over a month ago. So will oats and soybeans. Corn has been held back by the cold weather but could easily catch up after rains of last week end with better than average growing conditions from now on out.

Butter production hasn't been much different from a year ago. But in the last 3 months the government has purchased 72.5 million pounds under the federal support price program. This is equal to more than 17% of the creamery output in the April through June period.

The USDA has officially announced the national average support price for 1958 crop wheat. It will be $1.82 per bushel. That's 4¢ higher than the preliminary rate set several months ago. The support rate on 1957 wheat was $2.00. Rates for the different states will be announced soon. Then county rates will be figured out. Farmers who have stayed within their acreage allotments then will know just what prices are applicable to their own farms.

Prices paid for hogs on the big Chicago market in June were among the highest on record for that month. Buyers paid an average of $21.90 for the supply, including packing costs. That was the highest for any month since May, 1954.

The average last month was a 5-year June high and compares with $18.25 in 1957 and $15.40 of 2 years ago.

Incidentally, the percentage of packing costs in the June receipts was less than 25%. That's the smallest for June in many years. Last year the percentage was 31 and 2 years ago 32. The low percentage this year is indicative of increasing pig output next fall. Farmers are holding back more breeding stock for fall farrowing. The latest hog survey showed a probable pig crop next fall about 14% greater than a year ago. Some marketing people think it will be even higher.

More than two-thirds of all the beef produced is steer and heifer beef. Most of the remainder is cow beef. Of all beef produced only 4% grades prime, 33% choice, 21% good, 16% commercial and standard, 13% canner and cutter and 13% utility.

The house agriculture committee worked 6 months on a farm bill and then it was ditched before it even reached the house floor for debate and vote. There's a possibility that a farm bill originating in the senate may be passed this year. It follows more closely administration thinking.

This business of passing farm legislation isn't as simple as it used to be. One important factor is that farm interests in congress have lost the support of a large number of city representatives. They're needed to get sufficient votes for passage of farm laws.

Prices received by Michigan farmers at mid-June were 2% lower than a month earlier but still 8% above June, 1957.

Declines in the prices of milk poultry and eggs, hogs, beef cattle and barley more than offset increases in corn, wheat, oats, beans, soybeans, hay and wool.

The corn-hog ratio at mid-June was 18.2 to 1. This means that it took 18.2 bushels of corn to equal the value of 100 lb of hog, live weight. This is a favorable ratio for hog producers. The long-time June average is 12.9 to 1. At mid-month hogs were bringing 98% of parity, beef cattle 96%, calves 96% and lambs 82%. Corn was 68% of parity, wheat 70%, oats 70%, potatoes .67%, soybeans 67%, milk 81% and butterfat 75%.

Ohio State university meat specialists come up with these facts about ground beef and hamburger. Ground beef must have at least 80% lean meat and not over 20% fat. Hamburger may have as much as 33% fat content.

The fat content is important in buying ground beef. Too much fat means more shrinkage and fewer servings. Too little fat means dry, crumbly, less flavorful ground beef.

Color is a guide to ground beef quality. A bright red color probably means a freshly ground product. The paler the red color the higher the fat content. Because of the great amount of surface exposed to air, ground beef is subject to more bacterial action, drying out and flavor loss than other cuts of meat.

Miscellaneous — The Commodities Credit Corporation is the second largest corporation in the world, exceeded in size only by the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

About half a million cattle came in from Canada and Mexico during the first 5 months of 1958, about double the number of a year earlier.

About one-tenth of the total milk supply becomes cheese, 7% becomes ice cream, and one-fourth goes to make butter.

In the first 5 months of 1958, beef output was down 12% from 1957, veal was off 24%, pork 10% and lamb and mutton about 3.4%. Poultry production was up about 6.5%.

IT TAKES LOTS OF PLANNING for a county farm management tour. Rex Townsend and Dick Nelson discuss details of the Ingham tour scheduled for July 25. The Townsend farm will be the afternoon stop.

This 250-acre farm features a balanced program of crops and livestock for the family farm. Careful planning and efficient management practices make it possible for Townsend to carry 40 sows and produce the feed to finish out their pigs along with about 30 steers. About 30 acres of wheat is raised as a cash crop.

Featured at the Townsend farm will be chemical weed control, nitrogen side dressing on corn, chopping straw before baling and livestock equipment.

The Producers Elevator will have on display a farrowing crate self-feeder and bulk storage bin. Machinery dealers of Mason will demonstrate the straw chopping and baling.

Harold Gates, program chairman at this farm, will interview the Townsends on their program.

L. H. Brown, ag economics specialist of Michigan State university, will discuss management features on the farm.

Country & Town

Michigan State could well make a bigger thing of its experimental farms and its agricultural laboratories.

A generation ago almost everyone knew some of the facts of farm life. Their parents or their grandparents had been farmers. Everybody lived close to the soil — except for a few people in the biggest cities.

All that has changed. To thousands of youngsters a lamb or a calf is as much of an oddity as a giraffe or a hippo was 50 years ago.

A generation ago half the Mason people had their own poultry flock and many of them kept a family cow.

Michigan State might draw more people to its barns and experimental plots than to its new library by providing drives through the ag section — now far south of the river. City youngsters ought to know how cows are milked and how the milk is processed. They ought to know how crops are grown. That's as much a part of education as the multiplication table. Demonstration tours through the barns and fields are far more effective education than reading out of a book — even in the beautiful new library.

Mayor Paul D. Richards of Mason had his picture in the June issue of the Wyeth Shield which circulates at all Wyeth plants everywhere. The Shield is a company paper, full of pretty pictures on slick stock and Mason's mayor was right there on the front page.

Bob Jewett is getting his picture in Chicago papers frequently. Last week the Tribune ran a 3-col piece with a pretty picture, showing how Bob snags passes. Howard Barry, Trib sports writer, prophesied big things for Mason's big boy in the College-All Stars game and with the Bears after the pro season opens.

People who like to pick cherries are having fun this week and will have fun next week too. Picking raspberries on a big scale locally has become a lost art. There aren't enough to go around since Art Jewett plowed under his big patch. He plowed it under because there weren't enough pickers to go around. So the pickers disappeared before the berries did.

Wayne Barker has already staked out his claims on a huckleberry marsh east of Mason.

Jim Brown, regular columnist in this space, claimed he had 2 guest columnists signed for last week and this. Don Edgington showed up with last week's copy and he did real well. But nobody showed up this week. Just before press time a call went out for volunteers. In from the street came a man with this contribution. He asked that his name not be used. He doesn't want to jeopardize his amateur standing.

Farmers Share Bank Dividend

About 900 farmers in Eaton and Ingham counties will share in the twelfth annual dividend being paid by the National Farm Loan association of Charlotte.

Albert C. Mohr, secretary-treasurer, announced that checks totaling $10,000 are being prepared for farmers who have Federal Land bank loans through the cooperative association.

Directors of the association are Lloyd Bacon of Mulliken, president; Kenneth Powell of Webberville, vice-president; Laurence Clarke, Eaton Rapids; J. Carleton Creyts, Lansing; Elmer Leach, Mason; Donald Parks, Williams-ton; and Ellis Ray, Charlotte.

Albert C. Mohr, and his assistant, Bruce Omness, attended the annual summer conference at Houghton Lake last week.

This meeting was for the purpose of reviewing the 1957 accomplishments and to discuss the approach of extending long-term loans to part-time farmers as handled by the associations and the bank. Recent legislation has made part-time farmers eligible for land bank loans regardless of the number of acres in their farms.

A part of the meeting was devoted to honoring the association that had made outstanding records the past year in acquiring new member-borrowers or in dollar volume of business.

Mohr received honors on behalf of the local association for loaning over one million dollars in 1957. Membership was increased to 912 with outstanding land bank loans totaling over four million dollars.

Michigan State Revamps Ag Courses

Future agricultural students at Michigan State university can take fuller advantage of the multitude of careers in agriculture as a result of changes in the curriculum of the college of agriculture.

Three broad areas of study will be open to students beginning with the fall of 1958. These are agricultural science, agricultural business and general agriculture, according to Dr. Thomas K. Cowden, dean of the MSU college of agriculture. Michigan State also offers courses in more specialized agricultural fields.

"Modern agriculture," pointed out the college dean, "was developed by applying scientific knowledge and principles to agriculture. The new curriculum will place more emphasis on science and its application to the many phases of the agricultural industry."

Agriculture, too, is becoming a highly complex "business," pointed out the dean. "This is happening not only on the farm but all throughout the food industry from production through processing and distribution."

The new agricultural science curriculum is aimed toward the student who plans to do advanced work on one of the many specialized phases of agriculture, or whose field will require considerable scientific training as an undergraduate. A choice of 13 specializations will be offered in this curriculum. Agricultural science majors may work in experimental laboratories of colleges or commercial concerns seeking new products or exploring one of the unknown areas of the plant or animal kingdom.

Students who expect to work in any of the business phases of agriculture will find needed training in the agricultural business major. Sales, administration, public relations, technical advisor positions with feed, seed, fertilizer, farm equipment and food processing companies will be available to students in this area of study. There are 12 possible fields of study for agricultural business majors to choose from for a specialization.

The general agriculture major is intended for those who plan to farm, teach agriculture, enter extension work, work in agricultural communications or some other field where a broad knowledge of agriculture is needed. Fourteen specializations are offered to students in general agriculture.

In addition to the 3 broad areas of specialization, students in the college of agriculture may also choose from majors in agricultural engineering, fisheries and wildlife, forestry, lumber and building materials merchandising, mobile homes, packaging technology, park management, residential building, wood processing and technology.

Dean Cowden said that farm youth should make the best use of their invaluable farm background and experience in choosing their life's work. Each year, there are about 2 jobs for every agricultural college graduate.

"Education is an important tool in reaching your occupational goal," Dean Cowden reminded farm youth. "Many underestimate its importance as they start on their way toward achieving success in their chosen field of work."

Read Ephesians 1:15-23. Christ... loved the church, and gave himself for it. (Ephesians 5:25)

More than 30 years ago, in the midst of the anti-Christ movement in China, a young man was told that the church had this and that bad with it.

This young man answered, "I don't know many things, but I know I came from a poor family. If there were no church, I could not have received any education. My wife and many of my friends are Christians. They are not so bad as you have said."

The man who had said so many bad things about the church had nothing more to say.

Why do I love the church? I love it because I myself am growing spiritually and mentally in the fellowship of the church. Our children are trying to be good citizens. All our Christian friends are doing good things for the church and for society.

We need the church as sheep need the fold. We should feel as King David felt in saying: "I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness."

PRAYER
Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy Son, Jesus Christ, who came and founded the church. Guide us that in the church we may grow in the love and knowledge of Christ and that we may become perfect in Him. In His name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christ is our good Shepherd, and the church is our fold.
